ATTACKS HEARST

ROOT DENOUNCES INDEPENDENT CANDIDATE.

VOICES ROOSEVELT'S OPINION

CALLS HIM DANGEROUS DEMAGOGUE, UNFIT FOR OFFICE.

PRAISES CANDIDATE HUGHES

"Worst of Hearst," Said Secretary Root, "Is That Through His Newspapers, He Sows the Seeds of Dissension and Strife and Hatred."

UTICA, N. Y., Nov. 1.—Secretary of State Elihu Root joined with Charles E. Hughes here tonight in addressing a political mass meeting in the Majestic theater. The doors of the playhouse were closed shortly after 7 o'clock, so great was the crowd. A second meeting was arranged for in another hall and Mr. Hughes also spoke there.

Secretary Root came here direct from Washington, and using the name of President Roosevelt and speaking, as he said, "with his authority," he asked the people of the state to elect Mr. Hughes governor.

Mr. Root was heartily welcomed here tonight, and when someone in the gallery called out, "Who will be the next president?" there was a response of "Root!" Twice during the delivery of the speech the secretary was interrupted by persons in the audience and the great crowd in the theater was in an uproar. One of these came when Secretary Root declared Mr. Hearst had been elected to congress to serve the American people, but had failed to do so.

"That's a lie," shouted a man in the balcony. At once there was a roar of "Put him out!" But Mr. Root held up his hand for silence and said, "Let him remain."

He then read a statement which he declared summarized Mr. Hearst's record in the national house of representatives. The second interruption came when Secretary Root was referring to the assassination of President McKinley.

"McKinley's dead; why should you bring him into this?" cried a man. Again there was a tumult and several policemen started to eject the man.

Mr. Hughes spoke just before Mr. Root, and in his remarks paid a personal compliment to the secretary, saying:

"He comes to us tonight as a hero of the victories of peace."

Mr. Root paid an eloquent tribute to Charles E. Hughes and announced that he was authorized to say that the president greatly desires the election of Mr. Hughes as governor of New York.

Denounces Hearst.

"I say to you, with President Roosevelt's authority," said Mr. Root, "that he regards Mr. Hearst as wholly unfit to be governor, as an insincere, self-seeking demagogue, who is trying to deceive the working men of New York by false statements and false promises, and I say to you with his authority that he considers that Mr. Hearst's election would be an injury and a discredit alike to honest labor and to honest capital, and a serious injury to the work in which he is engaged in enforcing just and equal laws against corporations' wrongdoing.

"President Roosevelt and Mr. Hearst stand as far apart as the poles. Listen to what President Roosevelt himself has said of Mr. Hearst and his kind. In President Roosevelt's first message to congress, in speaking of the assassin of McKinley, he spoke of him as inflamed by the reckless utterances of those who, on the stump and in the public press, appeal to the dark and evil spirits of greed, envy and sullen hatred. 'The wind is sowed by the men who preach such doctrines, and they cannot escape the responsibilities for the whirlwind that is reaped. This applies alike to the exploiter of sensationalism and to the crude and foolish visionary who, for whatever reason, apologizes for crime or excites aimless discontent.'

What Roosevelt Thinks.

"I say, by the president's authority, that in penning these words, with the horror of President McKinley's murder fresh before him, he had Mr. Hearst specifically in mind. And I say by his authority that what he thought of Mr. Hearst then he thinks of him now."

Characterizing Mr. Hearst as a violent and unworthy demagogue, and a persistent office seeker, Mr. Root declared that as a congressman he had proved a worthless public servant; that while professing to favor an independent judiciary, he had made a deal with Tammany leaders for the nomination of a judiciary ticket in New York; that while inveighing against corporations his own corporate management shows the insincerity of his profession; that it is not calm and lawful redress of wrongs which he seeks, but the turmoil of inflamed passions and the terrorism of revengeful force; that he is guided by selfish motives, and that he is not guiltless of McKinley's death.

Dangerous Demagogue.

"We are witnessing in the state of New York," said Mr. Root, "one of those tests of popular government which often have come in the past and always will come in the future, when a demagogue attempts to get elected to office by exceeding all other men in the denunciation of real evils and in promises to cure them. It cannot

COMPLEXION OF NEXT HOUSE

Secretary Republican Congressional Committee Issues Statement.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—Congressman Henry C. Loudenslager of New Jersey, secretary of the Republican congressional committee, today issued the following statement regarding the complexion of the next house of representatives:

"Sure Republican, 222; sure Democratic, 139; doubtful, but probably Republican, 21; doubtful but possibly Democratic, 13."

SHOPLIFTERS ARE ARRESTED

Had Stolen Goods From Big Stores in Denver.

DENVER, Nov. 1.—Mary and Charles Cafferi, aged 26 and 28, pronounced by Andrew Roan of the Chicago detective bureau as "marvelous criminals," were brought to Denver today by Detective Harry E. Burlew and City Detective John Kenney.

The couple was arrested in Chicago while trying to sell some fine oriental and silk rugs, which had been stolen from the Denver Dry Goods store and Daniels & Fisher's.

According to their confession they had stolen several thousand dollars worth of rugs in western cities, the woman carrying them from stores under her long cloak after her husband rolled them up.

GAIN IS FULLY HELD

GENERAL PALMER'S CONDITION IS UNCHANGED.

Patient Apparently More Than Holding His Gain.—Friends Now Hope for His Recovery.

According to the doctors' bulletin issued at 11 o'clock last night, General Palmer yesterday maintained the improvement in condition noticed Wednesday, and is apparently more than holding his own. The bulletin follows:

"General Palmer's condition is unchanged. The gain made yesterday was fully held."

Apparently General Palmer's wonderful constitution is asserting itself. Another factor which is evidently in his favor is the absolute quiet which has been enforced since the accident, nobody having been allowed in the room except the doctors, two nurses and one of the general's daughters. With these exceptions, nobody has [illegible] the patient [illegible] night.

So satisfactory was General Palmer's condition yesterday that the most hopeful feeling prevailed among those closely connected with him, and the remark was made by a man who is unusually well informed concerning matters at Glen Eyrie that he would not be surprised to see General Palmer able to be up and about in the not distant future.

Electrical treatment is said to be the chief dependence of the doctors in the case and the result in restoring circulation and life to the lower limbs is said to be most satisfactory. General Palmer's mother lived to be 94 years old, and the general has inherited her magnificent constitution.

UTES CAPTURE LOAD OF FLOUR

No Engagements Reported.—Troops Run Short of Rations.—Indians Split Into Two Bands.

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Nov. 1.—A band of 100 Ute Indians, it is reported today, captured a wagon loaded with flour and supplies, bound from Arvada, to the Tenth and Sixth cavalry. The driver was held at rifle point while the redskins sacked the load and carried it away, allowing the driver to proceed with the empty wagon.

Troops camped at the mouth of Buffalo creek are on short rations, and more food has been ordered from Little Powder river, thirty miles away. Most of the Utes are still camped on Bear creek near Birney. Soldiers north of Sheridan have seen no trace of the Cheyennes.

SHERIDAN, Wyo., Nov. 1.—The Utes evidently have split into two bands. Telephone reports say that one band is on Bear creek, 20 miles southeast of Birney, Mont., and that the other band is camped along Hanging Woman creek in the Powder valley.

Two officers and sixteen troopers arrived from Birney today. They report that the main command from Fort Keogh is at Ashland and has seen no Cheyennes.

Colonel Augur broke camp at Shryves ranch, forty miles north of Sheridan today. He was expected to reach Birney early this afternoon.

FIND ANOTHER WRECK VICTIM

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Nov. 1.—The body of H. N. Burch, another victim of the Thoroughfare disaster, was recovered from the mud today. The divers say that the body was in an upright position, leaning against the piling of the bridge and had apparently been sucked into the mud.

INMATES ESCAPE

DOZEN GIRLS FLEE FROM INDUSTRIAL SCHOOL.

ALL BUT TWO ARE CAPTURED

WERE PURSUED BY POSSE ARMED WITH RIFLES.

TALES OF EXTREME CRUELTY

Sharp Rocks Are Placed in Their Mouths, When They Misbehave, the Girls Say, and Left for Hours Are Also Placed in Basement in Irons.

DENVER, Nov. 1.—In a daring and most sensational break for liberty yesterday afternoon, a dozen girls escaped from the girls' industrial school, four miles west of Fort Logan, and started for Denver. All but five of the escaped prisoners were captured before they had gone far, the seven male employes on the place forming a posse with rifles and shotguns and running them down. Two of the girls are still missing, and three of them were arrested at Broadway and Dakota streets last night.

Taken to City Hall.

The three captives were taken to the city hall and locked up in the matron's department. With clothing torn and barefooted except for stockings that have been worn through on rough roads the prisoners tell a most shocking story of the alleged brutality which they claim is now practiced at the industrial school. One of them said:

"Woodbury, the man who, under the direction of the new superintendent, Miss Marion Rudgers, is in direct charge of us, is a big, powerful brute who tries to rule by fear.

Place Rocks in Girls' Mouths.

"When any of us misbehave, rocks are placed in our mouths and handkerchiefs tied over our faces so that we can not get them out. Frequently girls are forced to keep rocks or sharp pieces of wood in their mouths for hours at a time. When relieved of the rocks their mouths are cut and bleeding, but that makes no difference to Miss Rudgers.

"There are about a dozen girls in the cells in the basement. Their hands are shackled behind them and their feet are also in irons. The shackles on their hands are only taken off when food is given them, and when they get through eating placed on again.

In School for Nine Years.

"I have been confined in the school since I was nine years old and never have I seen conditions worse than they are now. If they will send me to the penitentiary instead of back to that place I will be thankful and will try to serve out any sentence that is given me without causing any trouble. As sure as I go back to the school I will cause all of the trouble I can, because there is no use in doing otherwise."

Planned for Some Time.

According to the story of the girls the break for liberty had been planned for some time. They waited until a large group of them were in the halls and then with a flying wedge they burst through the guards at the doors and out into the grounds of the institution. It is a long distance to the fence, but by the time the fleeing girls had reached it they had left their pursuers far behind. The three girls who were arrested took off their shoes soon after getting out of the grounds so they could run faster, paying no attention to their feet being cut by the stones in the road. When they saw the policeman at Broadway and Dakota streets they were all so tired from running that he had no trouble in capturing them.

ADE DENIES HIS ENGAGEMENT

Says He Is Not to Wed Miss Hale, an Actress.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—George Ade today denied that he is engaged to be married to Miss Helen Hale, the actress, and issued the following statement upon the subject:

"The story in the morning papers to the effect that I am engaged is misleading. I am not engaged. I am not well acquainted with Miss Hale—have not seen her for two years—never had a letter from her, never said more than eight words to her. The story is a wilful misrepresentation and probably was started by someone who is trying to injure her standing in the theatrical profession."

REPRESENTATIVE HOAR DEAD

Son of Senator Geo. F. Hoar Dies After Illness of Five Weeks. Was Candidate.

WORCESTER, Mass., Nov. 1.—Representative Rockwood Hoar, son of the late Senator George F. Hoar, died tonight at his residence in this city after an illness of five weeks. Congressman Hoar, since September 26, has been unable to take part in the campaign for his reelection to congress. At the time of his renomination, when it was thought that his illness was of temporary character, his written letter of acceptance was presented to the district convention.

The congressman was first thought to be suffering from neuralgia, but alarming symptoms soon developed, and five days ago an operation was performed, but, in spite of this, the patient continued to fail.

TO ACT AS PEACE EMISSARY

White Bull, a Sioux Chief, Will Argue With Utes.

SIOUX CITY, Ia., Nov. 1.—White Bull, one of the chiefs of the Sioux Indians, was in Sioux City today on his way to the scene of the Ute uprising in Wyoming to act as an emissary of peace. He said he was anxious to meet the leaders of the Utes, that he might use his influence to dissuade them from fighting.

SEEKS RECONCILIATION

COUNT BONI HAS NOT ABANDONED HOPE.

Was so Confident His Wife Would Surrender That He Prepared no Defense.

PARIS, Nov. 1.—In spite of the statements made yesterday by M. Cruppi, in the opening address of the case of Countess de Castellane (who was Anna Gould of New York) for a divorce from her husband, Count Boni de Castellane, that there was not the faintest possibility of reconciliation, it is by no means certain that the count has abandoned hope of such an outcome.

His conduct since the suit began appears to have been based upon the belief that his wife must yield in the end. This theory will explain the count's refusal of liberal offers of a life income. It is also disclosed that the count never ceased writing letters to his wife in which he begged for a reconciliation, and in which he anathematized the American lawyers under whose influence he charged she was acting.

Friends of the count say he was dumfounded to learn that the countess had allowed the presentation yesterday of a detailed case. He was so confident that his wife would surrender that he did not prepare a defense. It was only today that the documents, which, under French law must be exchanged, were transferred to counsel for the opposition. These papers amount in the main to letters written to Count Boni by his wife and which show the contempt in which she held her husband. These letters will necessitate the production of letters which provoked them. It seems certain today that Count Boni's defense to the charge of infidelity will be "unproven" and that he consequently will demand an inquiry and the production of witness for the purpose of prolonging the case. A reconciliation would open a road to extricate the count from the money difficulties with which he is beset.

The calling of witnesses is what the attorneys for the countess are particularly anxious to avoid, as doing so would drag in some of the highest names of France. M. Cruppi yesterday gave no clue to the persons referred to as Mme. A., Mme. B., Mme. C., and Mme. D., except to those persons familiar with the current gossip. If an inquiry can be avoided, the decision probably will not be rendered before November 21.

M. Cruppi expects to speak for an hour and a half Wednesday, and the remainder of the session will be given to M. Bonet, counsel for the count. The court will then adjourn for a week in order to give the public prosecutor, who, under the French law, represents the interests of the community, an opportunity to present his conclusions. After this there will be a delay of another week while the court prepares the decision.

The reports that the husbands of two of the women referred to yesterday have challenged Count Boni to duels are without confirmation.

OUTLAWS THREATEN VIOLENCE

Continued Unrest in Portions of Cuba, Although no Actual Violence Has Been Reported.

HAVANA, Nov. 1.—Reports received at army headquarters from the provinces of Santa Clara, Santiago and Havana show continued unrest, although no instances of actual violence are mentioned. The commandant of the marines at Sancti Spiritus telegraphs that the town is quiet, but that the adjacent country is unsafe owing to the presence of outlaws, whom the rural guard is apparently unable to suppress. Similar conditions prevail near Sagua La Grande and Guantanamo, but they are without political significance.

Upon the recommendation of the chief surgeon, and for the purpose of insuring sanitary conditions in garrisoned towns, the medical officer attached to each command has been ordered to act as a member of the municipal board of health. Governor Magoon, acting upon the recommendation of the head of the department of agriculture, has notified the authorities of the Jamestown exposition that Cuba will be unable to participate therein.

Major Eugene F. Ladd, acting chairman of the disarmament committee in Havana province, reports that 1,465 insurgents have been disbanded in his territory. Only 330 certificates for the possession of horses have been issued by the committee.

The cruiser Brooklyn left this afternoon for Newport News.

NO OPTION GIVEN

THOMAS F. BURNS DENIES BROTHER'S CLAIM.

SAYS NO DEAL IS PENDING

PORTLAND DIRECTORS WILL NOT SELL CONTROL.

MANDAMUS PROCEEDINGS UP

Hearing was commenced by Judge J. W. Sheafor in the district court yesterday of the mandamus proceedings brought by James F. Burns against the Portland Gold Mining company, and the officials thereof, to compel them to allow his representatives to examine the books and property of the company. The trial was continued pending the filing of an amended writ of alternate mandamus by counsel for the plaintiff.

Burns declared in court yesterday that he knew an option had been granted on the control of the Portland company, making the statement to Judge Sheafor in answer to the request of the company's counsel that the hearing be continued, owing to the illness of its chief counsel, Judge A. T. Gunnell. Treasurer T. F. Burns of the Portland company denies the truth of James F. Burns' statement. The court held that the hearing could be superseded by the presentation of briefs, and the respondent company and directors, rather than have the case tried in this manner, consented to the immediate hearing. O. L. Dines of the Denver law firm of Dines and Whitted, represented the Portland management, Burns being represented by Attorney Murat Masterson of this city.

A demurrer was filed by the company and its officers, all being respondents, based on the proposition that the writ of alternate mandamus was insufficient because it omitted necessary allegations relative to letters and correspondence between Burns and officers of the company, which Burns attempted to make the basis of his writ, and also that in any event, the writ and petition together failed to show any denial by the company of the right of Burns as a stockholder to make a proper examination. It was contended that the company had never refused Burns the privilege of making an even more extensive examination than he was by law entitled to make, but had objected to an examination on his behalf by discharged employes and other persons known to be hostile to the company.

The matter was argued by counsel for both sides. At the conclusion, Burns' attorney asked leave to amend his writ, which was granted, in order that the first objection made in the demurrer of respondents might be remedied, and the matter be submitted hereafter free from technical objection.

Judge Sheafor accordingly issued an order granting Burns' counsel until tomorrow to file an amended alternate writ of mandamus, the respondents being granted five days from date of service to plead, or 15 days therefrom in which to answer.

It is said that an eastern trust company is negotiating for the purchase of the Portland control, the price approximating $2.25 per share. Thomas F. Burns, treasurer of the company, and a director, said last night:

"There is absolutely nothing in the report. Not only has no option on the stock been given, but there are no negotiations pending for the control."

The Stratton estate owns 500,000 shares, while R. C. Shannon of New York holds 420,000 shares. The Misses Kate and Jennie Burns control 175,000 shares, while Mrs. John Cobb holds 50,000 and Mrs. Harrison 97,000 shares. John Harnah of Denver owns 37,000 shares, the total aggregating 1,312,000 shares. The Portland control would be more than 1,500,000 shares, which is half the capitalization. The above named stockholders are in harmony with the directors in the management of the company.

ARRIVES IN SAN FRANCISCO

Secretary Metcalf Makes Appointment With President Altman.

SAN FRANCISCO, Nov. 1.—Secretary Metcalf of the department of commerce and labor came over from Oakland this afternoon and opened headquarters in the postoffice building. He has made an appointment with President Altman of the board of education, who will meet the secretary and report on the action of the board in obtaining a separate school for the Japanese.

HEAD-ON PASSENGER COLLISION

Operator Slept and Failed to Signal Train—No Passengers Were Injured.

CHEYENNE, Wyo., Nov. 1.—Two passenger trains on the Union Pacific railroad, eastbound, overland flyer No. 2 and the westbound Pacific coast express No. 7, collided head-on at Ridge, west of Medicine Bow, early this morning and the engines were demolished but no passengers were injured. Engineer Jack Costin of No. 7 jumped after applying the air and broke his shoulder. The accident was caused by the failure of the Ridge operator, who had fallen asleep, to signal No. 2, which was late.

EMBEZZLEMENT AND LARCENY

Cripple Creek Watchmaker Faces Serious Charges at Greeley.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 1.—Sheriff Bell today arrested Roland M. Turner, watchmaker, on a complaint from Greeley, which charges Turner with embezzlement and larceny. No particulars are obtainable here. Turner has been in the employ of the Fleishman Jewelry company and some two weeks ago accidentally shot the proprietor. He was taken to Greeley this afternoon.

DALNY NOW OPEN TO WORLD

Was Opened to Trade, Without Ceremony, September 1.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—Dalny was opened to the trade of the world on September 1, without any ceremony whatever, according to a report made to the state department by John E. Jones, the American consul. Mr. Jones says that many Japanese cargoes have arrived. At present no business houses are available, but Mr. Jones says a number of Japanese firms have obtained permission to repair buildings, which were damaged in the late war, and merchants of other nations probably can obtain the same right. Some American cotton fabrics already have been received, but Japan is working hard for the trade. Food is scarce and high priced, and it is almost impossible to get labor.

BATTLE WITH BANDITS

FOUR MEN ARE DEAD AS A RESULT.

In Capturing Robbers, Three Officers and One Member of Posse Are Killed.

SPOKANE, Wash., Nov. 1.—Four men are dead as a result of the battle yesterday afternoon near Kennewick, Wash., between officers and a band of five or six men who had robbed two stores in Kennewick. The dead are:

MARSHAL MIKE GLOVER.

JACOB LAKE, ex-convict.

JOE HOLZER, deputy sheriff, died this morning as a result of wounds in the abdomen.

FRANK PERRY, member of a posse, accidentally shot in the stomach by a deputy sheriff.

The captured robber is a youth who gave his name as Robert Layton and who later said his name is Elbert Parker, and that he came from Florence, Colo.

Sheriff McNeil, who was also shot by the robbers when his party was ambushed, is not badly hurt.

Parker is not the Seattle pugilist, known as "Kid" Parker. The arrested boy seems to have adopted that name in the hope of concealing his own, which is probably Robert Layton. His home is at Florence, Colo., and he is an undersized boy of perhaps 18 years with a small face and bushy hair.

The officers now state that the youth and Lake were the only men concerned in the Kennewick robbery and all of the posses have been called in.

PUEBLO, Nov. 1.—A special to the Chieftain from Florence, Colo., says:

Robert Layton, alias Elbert Parker, is not known at Florence, Colo.

NOTED SWINDLER IS CAUGHT

Charged With Defrauding People of [illegible] to $2,000,000.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Charles Whitney Norton, said by the police and postal authorities to be responsible for extensive swindling operations, is under arrest here and will be turned over to the federal authorities by the police, who took him into custody. It is charged that Norton has defrauded people in all parts of the United States of bonds and securities amounting to $2,000,000. It is asserted by the officers that Norton would obtain stock from any person who would trust him, and agree to sell it in the market. He might, the police declare, sell the stock and he might not, but the result to the owner of the stock was the same. They would receive no money from Norton, nor would the stock be returned to them, the officers allege.

In his room were found bonds, stocks, abstracts of land titles, first mortgages and other negotiable paper together, part of which is thought to be genuine and worth almost $2,000,000. Other papers were found which on their face are worth about $1,000,000, but their actual value is doubtful.

RAILROAD TO PAY DAMAGES

Parents of Sam Shubert Awarded $25,000 Damages.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—The story of "How everything that Sam Shubert touched turned into gold" was told in the United States circuit court today by Lee Shubert, a brother and business partner of the dead theatrical manager. Sam Shubert was killed in a wreck on the Pennsylvania railroad at Harrisburg, Pa., on May 10, 1905, and his father and mother brought suit against the railroad company for $250,000 damages. At eighteen, a bell boy, Sam Shubert died at 28, the head of a partnership which controlled nearly half a hundred theaters in the United States and England, and a large number of prosperous theatrical companies on the road. Sam Shubert's annual income was about $90,000.

The jury awarded $25,00 damages to Sam Shubert's father and mother.

BUCHTEL HAS ADDRESSED OVER 21,000 PEOPLE ON TOUR.

Special to The Gazette.

STERLING, Colo., Nov. 1.—After a record-breaking trip of over 2,500 miles in Colorado, the mission of the "Prosperity Special" was completed tonight at Sterling by a rousing political rally that will long be remembered. The folk on the western slope greeted Henry A. Buchtel more warmly than it ever has a political candidate. Across the mountains, the Arkansas valley paid its tribute in welcome to the special and the message of prosperity that it brought, and the great gold camp in the hills

During the days of the special, Chancellor Buchtel has addressed over 21,000 people, thousands of whom [illegible] not have seen and heard him but for the "Prosperity Special." If there [illegible] at any time any doubt that [illegible] Buchtel would be elected governor on Tuesday next, that doubt has vanished. Altogether the chancellor has made seventy-nine addresses in this campaign, and before it closes the number will be eighty-two. Of those already made, thirty have been long ones, averaging one and one third hours each, and forty-four have been shorter [illegible], averaging ten minutes each. The chancellor will make three additional addresses of the more pretentious sort. This is a record unparalleled in Colorado, and the chancellor has made more speeches than Alva Adams and Tom Patterson together. Still after the close of the strenuous fight, the chancellor is in good [illegible] and in the [illegible] can be heard fully a block. It is wonderful the endurance of this man, but what is still more wonderful is his ability to win people to him and to impress on all who hear him profound sincerity.

Great Meetings Last Day.

The last day of the special closed with two great meetings, one at Julesburg with 800 people, who stood up in the court house for more than an hour to listen to the chancellor, and the other an evening meeting in Sterling, where 850 people were jammed into the court house. As always, the chancellor was accorded the heartiest welcome. The chancellor has today emphasized the achievements of the Republican party as the adequate reason of the large vote which he believes will be cast on Tuesday.

"The last congress," said the chancellor tonight at Sterling, "passed 329 public acts. The six great measures are known to all men. POINTED PARAGRAPHS.

From the Chicago Daily News.

If we could only see ourselves as others see us—but we can't, so there's no use worrying about it.

Most men and women are forgotten after they die and a great many are forgotten before the undertaker gets them.

There is no reason why men shouldn't love their enemies as they love themselves, especially if they happen to be their own worst enemies.

The first thing a woman does after being introduced to a man is to look at his hands for the purpose of finding out whether he works or not.

be doubted that many working men in this state are about to strengthen the enemies and weaken the friends of popular government all over the world by voting for Mr. Hearst, who is just the kind of a demagogue I have described. He is indeed an especially dangerous specimen because he is generously rich and owns newspapers of large circulation, and he can hire many able and active men to speak well of him and praise him in speech and in private conversation. Not only is the cause of popular government in danger of suffering injury and discredit from the vote for Mr. Hearst, but genuine reform, the real practical redress of the evils complained of by the people, is in danger of being weakened and brought to naught by this attempt of Mr. Hearst to get himself elected governor of New York.

Asks for Evidence of Fitness.

"What evidence has Mr. Hearst produced of his fitness for this office? Of his private life I shall not speak further than to say that from no community in this state does there come concerning him that testimony of lifelong neighbors and acquaintances to his private virtues, the excellence of his morals, and the correctness of his conduct, which we should like to have concerning the man who is to be made governor of New York.

"He is really known to the United States solely as a young man, very rich by inheritance, who has become the owner of a number of sensational yellow journals. He has taken in his newspapers the popular side upon all questions relating to labor and corporations, and has sustained it by much violent denunciation and many falsehoods, and he has been a persistent seeker for office on the strength of taking the popular side; he has published whatever he thought would please the working people, for the purpose of getting the labor vote.

"There is, however, affirmative evidence of Mr. Hearst's unfitness for the great office of governor. You will perceive that to remedy corporate wrongs for which he offers himself, two things are necessary—first, intelligent and well-devised legislation, and second, the judicial enforcement of the laws. Underlying both of these and necessary to both, is political purity, for without that neither legislatures nor courts can be pure.

Hearst's Political Purity.

"How stands Mr. Hearst's record as to political purity? He comes to us covered all over with the mark of Tammany and Tammany's leader, Murphy whom he himself has denounced as a scoundrel and a thief; he comes to us not answering the call of the people of the state, not as the honest candidate of the Democratic party of the state, but named by his own procurement through as shameful a deal with the boss of Tammany as ever disgraced the political history of the state. Can hypocrisy go further than the willing beneficiary of Tammany Hall preaching political purity?

"How stands his record as a legislator? He had an opportunity to prove his capacity and sincerity in that field.

Record in Congress.

"Representatives are sent to congress to attend to the business of the country. Mr. Hearst was sent to congress to do that; he had an opportunity to show how much sincerity there was in all the talk of his papers about reforms and better government.

"What did he do? He did nothing; during the three years that he has been in congress, that body has been in session 467 days; there have been 185 recorded votes by yea and nay; he was present and voting at but 23, and present without voting at two; his voice was heard in congress in three years but once, and that for ten minutes on a personal explanation regarding an article published in the New York American; he did not even contribute a motion to adjourn to the business of congress.

"He is so rich that the $15,000 paid him for the neglected service may seem of no consequence, but no honest poor man would have thought it right to take it.

"It is seldom, indeed, that a man so young, whose public career has been so brief, so small a portion of whose life is known at all to the public, has furnished such convincing proofs of his unfitness for office.

"The public knows the character of Mr. Hearst only by the newspapers he publishes, and God forbid that he should set up in the high station of governor of New York for the admiration of our children the man whose character is reflected in the columns of the New York Journal and American.

The Worst of Hearst.

"But the worst of Mr. Hearst," said Mr. Root, "is that with his great wealth, with his great newspapers, with his army of paid agents, for his own selfish purposes, he has been day by day and years by year sowing the seeds of dissension and strife and hatred throughout our land; he would array labor against capital and capital against labor; poverty against wealth and wealth against poverty, with bitter and vindictive feeling; he would destroy among the great mass of our people that ~~kindly and~~ friendly spirit, that consideration for the interests and rights of others, that brotherhood of citizenship which is essential to the peaceful conduct of free popular government; he would destroy that respect for law, that love of order, that confidence in our free institutions which are the basis of freedom and true justice. The malignant falsehoods of these journals, read by the immigrant in his new home, where none can answer them are making him hate the people who have welcomed him to liberty and prosperity, to abundant employment, to make ample wages, to educate for his children, to independence for his manhood, such as he has never known before. What public servant honored by the people's trust was he not assailed with vile and vulgar epithets; what branch of our free government has he not taught his readers to believe a corrupt agency of oppression?"

Continuing on this subject, Mr. Root said:

Consequence of Abuse.

"Only once has this method of incendiary abuse wrought out its natural consequence—in the murder of President McKinley. For years, by vile epithets and viler cartoons, the readers of the Journal were taught to believe that McKinley was a monster in human form, whose taking off would be a service to mankind. Let me quote some of these teachings:

"'McKinley condones the treacherous murder of our sailors at Havana, and talks of his confidence in the honor of Spain. He plays the coward and shivers white faced at the footfall of a processing war. He makes an international cur of his country. He is an abject, weak, futile, incompetent poltroon.'

"'McKinley, bar one guthy Princeton person who came to be no more or less than a living, breathing crime in breeches, is therefore the most despised and hated creature in the hemisphere; his name is hooted, his figure is burned in effigy.'

"'The bullet that pierced Goebel's chest
"Can not be found in all the west.
"Good reason; it is speeding here
"To stretch McKinley on his bier.'

"And this, in April, 1901.

"'Institutions like men will last until they die, and if bad institutions and bad men can be got rid of only by killing, then the killing must be done.'"

Yellow Journalism Responsible.

"What wonder that the weak and excitable brain of Czolgosz answered to such impulses as these," said the speaker. "He never knew McKinley; he had no real or fancied wrongs of his own to avenge against McKinley or McKinley's government; he was answering the lesson that he had learned, that it was a service to mankind to rid the earth of a monster and the foremost of the teachers of these lessons to him and his kind was and is Wm. Randolph Hearst, and his yellow journals. Is there no one left who loved McKinley? Are there no workingmen in New York who can not see with satisfaction honors heaped upon the man who is not guiltless of McKinley's death? The same kind of teaching is being continued now, month by month and day by day, by the Hearst journals. Its legitimate consequences, if continued, must be other weak dupes playing the role of Czolgosz; other McKinleys stretched upon the bier, discord and bloody strife in place of reign of peace and order throughout our fair land. It is not the spirit of Washington and of Lincoln; it is the spirit of malice for all and charity toward none; it is the spirit of anarchy, of the communist, of Kishineff and Bialystok."

Pleads With Auditors.

Mr. Root urged his audience to return a majority of Republicans in the house of representatives to work with President Roosevelt in the next congress. "The evils which have come with the enormous increase in corporate wealth in recent years are real and serious," said he. "There have been many outrageous practices which ought to be stopped and many wrongdoers who ought to be punished. That should be done not by lynch law, but by the intelligent and wise action which befits a self-governing people. Declamation and big head lines in the newspapers will not do the business. The thing needed is to cut out the wrongdoing and save the business. The same kind of patient, experienced and discriminating skill is needed for the process that the surgeon needs in cutting out a tumor from the human body and saving the life of a patient. Now this process of intelligent and effective redress of wrongs is going on; great and substantial progress has been made in it; laws are being reformed so as to meet the present evils; laws are being enforced with vigor and success; malefactors are being punished according to law, and not against the law; skill and wisdom and efficiency and honest purpose never surpassed in the history of this or any other country, have put their hands to the task and are pressing it forward with untiring energy.

Commends Hughes.

"The most conspicuous and fit representative of this great and beneficent work in this state is Charles E. Hughes. The most conspicuous and fit representative of this same great and beneficent work in the national government is Theodore Roosevelt, president of the United States. The honest poor man who has felt the crushing power of unfair wealth may take heart, for the most powerful personality of our generation, from the vantage ground of the greatest office in our land, is leading the battle in his behalf; the honest rich man who fears that property may be endangered and prosperity checked, may calm his fears; not a single principle is invoked in this warfare against corporate wrongdoing that has not for centuries been familiar to the common law of England and America; but to exercise the same measure of control under the new conditions of our day, new agencies and new methods have had to be provided by the law and sanctioned by the courts. The structure of our prosperity will not be weakened; it will be strong and enduring, by removing with the care of the experienced builder, the rotten timbers of disobedience to law and disregard of morality. The first danger is lest the people should refuse to return a majority of Republicans in the house of representatives; the second danger is lest in this greatest of states, the president's own state, the voters shall reject Mr. Hughes, who was the president's own choice for the nomination and, should elect to that great office an unworthy demagogue in the person of Mr. Hearst.

"The immediate and necessary effect of Mr. Hearst's election would be to deprive the president of the moral support of the state of New York; it would be to strengthen the president's enemies and opponents, and to weaken and embarrass him in the pursuit of his policy. It would inevitably lead to a reaction against all true reform and genuine redress of grievances."

SPECIAL TRAIN FOR ROOTERS

Over 200 Students Will Accompany the Tiger Eleven to Boulder Next Tuesday.

Over 200 students of Colorado college have pledged themselves to accompany the Tigers on election day to Boulder, where the local eleven will play the University of Colorado football team. A special train, leaving Colorado Springs over the Colorado & Southern at 9 a. m., will carry the students to Denver, where dinner will be served, after which the special will proceed to Boulder, landing, the team's followers at the football field about 2 o'clock. The game is scheduled to begin at 2:30 p. m., and in spite of the defeat of last Saturday, the students and players are confident of victory. The special will leave Boulder at 6:45 p. m. on the return trip, and is slated to arrive in the Springs at 9:45 p. m.

The University of Colorado team has just returned from a trying trip to Kansas and has the benefit of the experience received in the games with the sturdy Kansans. The Tigers, however, are determined to land the championship of Colorado, and to do this they must defeat the Boulder team.

BASKETBALL AT THE COLLEGE

Team Will Have Backing of Athletic Association.

Colorado college will have a first-class basketball team this year for the first time in several years. It will probably receive financial backing from the Athletic association, and will become as important as any other branch of college athletics. The college is fortunate in having among its students four old members of the Denver Highland Wheel club team, which held the state championship at one time. These men are Reeks, Jardine, Siddons and Fisher. The fifth member of the team will be Lamb of Greeley, who has a good reputation as a basketball player. Reeks has been elected captain of the team. A schedule with the other teams of the state will be made as soon as the football season is over.

NEW YORK, Nov. 2.—The remarkable cures effected by ascatco, the Austrian drug, in cases of asthma, catarrh and bronchitis, are the subject of widespread attention and comment by profession and laity throughout the country.

Ascatco has fulfilled all expectations which attended its first introduction into this country and is now accepted as a true specific. It is taken in small doses without restricting the patient's habits and its beneficial effects are at once apparent.

The free distribution of sample bottles of ascatco is being continued by the Austrian dispensary, 32 West 25th street, New York city. They will be sent to anyone on request.

NEVER POTTED WILD TURKEY

President Is Anxious to Add One to His Record.

RICHMOND, Va., Nov. 1.—The president, Mrs. Roosevelt and Surgeon General Rixey at Pine Knot, got up early this morning and started on a hunt for wild turkeys. The president has never potted a wild turkey and it is his ambition to add one to his record. Some of his neighbors, it is reported, undertook to play a joke on him by turning a flock of domestic turkeys of the bronze variety into the woods and driving them so that they would fall a prey to the president's gun, but Mr. Roosevelt would have none of the domestic birds.

MISSION FINISHED

measures which have been championed and adopted by the Republican party for the enlargement and enrichment of our national life. We find the homestead law, signed by Lincoln. Another in the list is the reclamation law, signed by Roosevelt. All financial legislation and all pension legislation must be credited exclusively to the Republicans. Every schedule of duties on imports to protect American labor has been made by Republicans. The Sherman antitrust law is a Republican measure. Senators Sherman and Edmonds wrote that famous act, and William McKinley carried it through the house in the face of the opposition of every Democratic congressman but one. The fact that the Republicans have made good is the reason for the enthusiasm we find everywhere for the whole Republican ticket."

Received in Good Faith.

Everywhere the chancellor is received in absolute good faith, and everywhere he impresses upon his audiences the truth of the fact that he took the nomination for governor absolutely without any pledge of any character. When the chancellor rises up and makes his statement that he pledges his character as a man of integrity against all the abuse of yellow papers and yellow speakers, he is cheered repeatedly. His discussion of the political issues is on a high level, and he never stoops to answer the torrent of abuse heaped on him by the opposition.

At Julesburg, the chief speaker with the chancellor was Earl Cranston. Cranston drew an interesting word picture of the two old parties marching in parade. The Democratic party, keeping step to the dead march, he said, carried transparencies on which it displayed such mottoes as "The Man Who Pays You High Wages Robs You to Do It," "Let Us Have Trouble," "Down With Property Rights," "Don't Rejoice in Prosperity—Calamity Is Coming," "Low Wages Our Specialty," and "Down With the Eagle and Up With the Raven," "Don't Work—Take What You Want." In the Republican procession, marching to the music of the nation he told of its transparencies. They were "Peace, Plenty, Unity," "Liberty Under the Law," "Persons and Property Must Be Respected," "Let Labor and Capital Be Brothers, Not Foes," and "Be Strong, Brave and Vigilant." He was received with laughter and applause as he described the march of the two processions.

Cranston then showed that the Republican party was a builder and contrasted it with the Democratic party, which, as the party of demolition, he pointed out that the issues brought forth by the constructive party lived today in the law of the land, while the issues brought on by the Democratic party were now in the political graveyard. Each year, he asserted, a new gospel was brought forth by the party to serve for a little while, then to be returned to the graveyard.

The Burlington road left the Special with a legacy of two and a half hours behind time, and all the stations nearer to Denver the crowds became tired of waiting. In spite of that, there were remarkable demonstrations at every stop. At Brighton, there were 400 who gave the chancellor a great reception. At Fort Lupton there were over 100; Platteville, 75, Lasalle, 77; Kersey, 75, Weldon, 125; Atwood, 125.

Mrs. Bent spoke at Sedgwick tonight.

IDENTIFIED BY FINGER PRINTS

System Adopted by United States Army Results in Capture.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1.—A curious result of the recent adoption by the United States army of the system of identification by finger prints, just reported to the war department was the discovery in the person of a soldier at Fort Leavenworth of a British murderer for whom the Scotland yard authorities have long been looking.

The man was a prisoner in the United States penitentiary, serving a five-year sentence for a military crime. In prison he was well behaved and liked, but when the warden, following the general order to take finger print records of all soldiers, attempted to secure an impression of this man's digits, he met with violent resistance and the assistant who tried to make the record was knocked down and roughly handled.

Suspecting that this resistance was based upon the man's previous knowledge of the use to which these finger prints might be put, and that his record was bad, the warden sent copies of the prints to the police authorities in a number of cities. Within a comparatively short time Scotland yard reported that the man had committed an atrocious murder in Morta; that he had been sentenced to life imprisonment and had escaped to America.

Happiness in a Tablet.

Perfect Health for Every One Procured at Small Cost

How many times have you sat down at your meals absolutely disgusted at the thought or sight of anything to eat?

How many times have you sat down at your meals without the trace of an appetite, but just because it was "time to eat?"

How many times have you felt a gnawing, unsatisfied, "still-hungry" feeling in your stomach, even after you were through eating?

How many times have you felt that "lump of lead" on your stomach after eating, whether your meal was well cooked or not?

And how many times have you suffered a whole lot of other things from your stomach that you couldn't explain but that made you grouchy, miserable out-o-sorts and generally sour on everybody and everything?

It is safe to say you couldn't tell You don't keep track of those things, of course, but you know you've suffered them You probably have had them for so long that they've become a habit with you, and you have come to the conclusion that your fate is to suffer them indefinitely and perhaps forever

And so men much like horses standing unhitched at the hitching post think they're tied and so their habit makes them prisoners

But no one need have dyspepsia, nor indigestion nor loss of appetite, brash, irritation burning sensations, heartburn nausea eructations bad memory loss of vim and vigor and the happiness that comes from a healthy stomach and a good appetite if he will only leave his old hitching post and tie himself to a new one, one that will hold him to health, joy ambition and a clear mind and memory and the sunshine that goes with them

That indeed is Heaven! And you can get it in a little tablet already prepared for the purpose In Stuart's Dyspepsia Tablets those little cherubs of health and delight found in thousands of homes today Listen one ingredient of one of these precious little tablets will digest for you 3000 grains of food

Quick, now, without stopping to think—is it a go?"

"Sure," replied the married man. "I'll smoke on you"

"All right, go ahead with the description But be careful—I am acquainted with her What does she weigh"

"A hundred and thirty-three. That's easy—we both got weighed a few days ago"

"Very good What's the color of her hair?"

"Why, black that is pretty near black—a sort of brownish black, with a kind of a—er—reddish tinge"

"Get out that doesn't go Reddish-black-brown doesn't mean anything How tall is she"

"Well, the top of her head just comes to my chin and I am 5 feet 11 inches She's about—let me see—about 5 feet 2"

"What's the color of her eyes?"

"Blue—no, by jinks I believe they're gray Confound it, I guess I lose the bet Seems to me one eye is blue but I distinctly remember looking at one of them the other day and it was gray Or, maybe it was one of my stenographer's eyes I noticed Darned if I know"

"Just so" scornfully remarked the hotel clerk "But never mind, you do as well as the average man Not one in ten can give an accurate description of his wife

NO SETTLEMENT IS IN SIGHT

New York Chauffeurs Are Still Out. Riot Between Sympathizers and the Police

NEW YORK Nov 1—There is no settlement in sight of the trouble between the New York Transportation company, and its striking chauffeurs and practically all the company's automobiles are still tied up

Strike sympathizers this afternoon surrounded an electric vehicle in which was Miss Bessie Glen Buchanan a writer of Pittsburg Believing the cab was empty strike sympathizers hurled stones at it Miss Buchanan screamed for assistance

Among those who were in the crowd was Arnold Daly the actor He pushed his way through the crowd and begged the men throwing stones to desist, as there was a woman in the cab They at once assumed an apologetic air and avowed they had thought the cab was empty They scattered when a policeman appeared

Five hundred striking chauffeurs and sympathizers participated in a riot at Eighth avenue and Eighty-sixth street tonight About 100 policemen were required to quell it Many policemen had their helmets and uniforms ruined, Roundsman Frank J Dunn was struck on the head by stones and seriously injured The police declare that the trouble was started by a young woman, who urged the crowd standing in the street to break up the police protection of a passing automobile

"Will you stand this? Go at them" the woman is said to have shouted,

Instantly the cry was raised, "Down with the strike breakers. Kill the police." The crowd surrounded the automobile and stones, sticks and eggs were thrown from every direction The police made repeated efforts to arrest the men who appeared to be ringleaders, but every time a man was caught he was rescued by his companions

Late tonight there was another clash between strikers and policemen. Only the arrival of reserve patrolmen saved Patrolman Isaac Levy from serious injury at the hands of a mob at Forty-eighth street and Eighth avenue, Levy was being kicked and beaten, when the reserves ran up. Charles Opp was arrested. He had been so severely handled during the fight that his hurts required his being removed to the hospital Robert B. Moran was also arrested. He was injured, but refused medical attendance.

FARMERS BEING EDUCATED

Bulletin Issued on Denatured Alcohol, [illegible]

WASHINGTON, Nov. 1—The department of agriculture, through Dr. H. W. Wiley, chief of the bureau of chemistry, has undertaken to educate the farmers regarding the manufacture of denatured alcohol. Two bulletins were issued today devoted to the description of the sources from which industrial or denatured alcohol may be obtained, the method of manufacture, and some uses to which it may be put, as well as statistics showing the possibilities in the development of the industry

From Dr. Wiley's discussion of the subject, the conclusion is reached that the manufacture of alcohol on a small scale is not likely to prove profitable Because of the regulations under which the farmer would be required to conduct his still if he engaged in the manufacture it is evident that he must be content with producing the raw materials and that he cannot look forward to becoming a practical distiller

The bulletin on the subject of sources and manufacture, says:

The principal uses of industrial alcohol are illumination, heating, motive power and the manufacture of lacquers varnishes, smokeless powder, medicinal and pharmaceutical preparations vinegar and ether When industrial alcohol is made at a price at which it can compete with petroleum and gasoline it doubtless will be preferred for the purposes above mentioned because of its greater safety and more pleasant odor.

Under the present conditions it is not probable that industrial alcohol can be offered upon the market at much less than forty cents a gallon of 95 per cent strength

Dr Wiley expresses the belief, however that by the paying of attention to unused sources of raw material and with improved methods of manufacturing [illegible] this price can be diminished

LEAVES LANDS TO HIS WIFE

"Lord" Scully Totally Disinherits His Three Daughters. Will Is Filed.

WASHINGTON Nov 1—The will of William Scully otherwise known as Lord Scully said to be the largest owner of real estate in America was filed here today for probate The document was executed April 22 1901 All his lands, none of which are outside the United States, are devised absolutely to his wife, E. Angela Scully.

Mr. Scully totally disinherits his three daughters Mary Julia and Kathleen in language as follows

"I leave my three daughters by my first wife, Mary and Julia (both of whom, as I hear, have been married) and Kathleen, and to their children and their children's children and their descendants and each of them, nothing whatever, my will and meaning being absolutely and entirely to disinherit all and each of the three of them and their descendants. I do this for superabundant reasons, which I forbear to particularise here"

The ban is lightened as to the youngest daughter, Kathleen, whom the testator recommends to the kind consideration of his widow, but leaving the latter free and unfettered as to what action she may take. The testator approves and confirms all gifts and conveyances of property and rights made to his son, Thomas Scully, and his wife, E. Angela Scully.

Mrs. Scully is appointed guardian of the son, Frederick Scully, during minority. The widow and C W. Kochnle and Frederick Knapp, of Lincoln, Ill., are named executors. His son, Frederick Scully, when the latter attains his majority is to be an executor.

With the close of the day the storm center of political action in this state was transferred from the up state counties to Greater New York Until November 6, both candidates will make their appeals to the voters of the metropolitan districts The programs arranged for them call for many speeches—and their vigorous and almost unprecedented campaigns will continue practically to the dawn of election day Mr Hearst has already returned to the city, and Mr. Hughes will arrive tomorrow morning from Utica where he closed his upstate campaign tonight

The comments of Richard Croker, former leader of Tammany Hall, upon the gubernatorial campaign in New York, and the speech of Secretary of State Root at Utica tonight are the startling incidents of the day

Mr Croker in an interview in Dublin Ireland criticised severely the action of Charles F Murphy, leader of Tammany, in bringing about the nomination of Mr. Hearst at Buffalo, and predicted that if Mr Hearst is elected and carries out his program the effect would be to paralyze capital and thereby paralyze labor."

SOME THINGS A CHARTER WOULD PROVIDE.

MOST of the provisions which a city charter would contain would be placed there at the discretion of the men who composed the charter convention, subject to the approval of the people. What these provisions will be—assuming that the voters decide to call a charter convention, of course—can not be known now, any more than we can tell today what legislation will be enacted by the next session of Congress. But there are certain things which must go into the charter, whether or no, because they are demanded by the state constitution.

One of these is a provision that all franchise grants be submitted to a vote of the people. Under present conditions it is possible for the street railway company, the electric company, the telephone company, a steam railroad company or any other public utility corporation to get a franchise granting it the use of the city streets or alleys, merely by gaining the consent of five aldermen—that is, a majority of the Council. The people have nothing to say on the question. Think of it! Five aldermen have full power to grant franchises worth hundreds of thousands of dollars without the payment into the city treasury of so much as a cent, and the people are powerless to intervene.

But if we had a charter the situation would be entirely different. Then no franchise could be granted unless a majority of the taxpayers voted in favor of it at an election.

Mr. Taxpayer: Don't you want to have something to say about the granting of these franchises? Do you know that the street railway company, for example, now owns franchises giving it the use of the city streets absolutely FREE, franchises which are worth to it a good many hundred thousand dollars, for it couldn't do business for one day without them? Do you suppose that these franchises would have been granted on such easy terms if you and the rest of the people had had something to say about it?

Indeed, they would not. The street railway company would now be paying a stated percentage of its receipts into the city treasury every month, or else it would be giving the people at least equally good service for less money. It is only a few months ago that this same corporation asked for still another franchise on the same terms. It wanted the privilege of operating on the city's streets, but declined to pay anything at all for it. There is no telling when it, or some other public utility corporation, will go before the Council with a similar request.

Do you, Mr. Taxpayer, want a chance to vote on the question, or are you willing to leave it to five aldermen of the Council?

This is good sense, and good government, because it gives the whole people a chance to express their will on a matter of vital importance to them. And yet the organ of the drugstore-saloonkeepers and the gang politicians, in the fight on the charter, doesn't seem to realize that it is making itself ridiculous when it declares that a charter would mean "one-man government!"

A TUNNEL UNDER BERING STRAIT.

FRENCH engineers seem to share the love of their race for big things. It was a Frenchman who planned and executed the Suez Canal, and who planned and failed to execute a waterway across the Isthmus of Panama. The project of a tunnel under the English Channel to connect Dover and Calais was proposed by some enthusiastic Frenchman nearly a century ago and within the last year it has been revived and is now seriously considered by the governments of both nations concerned. The Suez Canal long ago demonstrated its value, and a Panama Canal is considered so indispensable to the commercial and naval development of the United States that our Government is preparing to spend several hundred millions in its construction. Competent engineers regard the proposed tunnel under the British Channel as entirely practicable, and there is good reason to believe that before the end of the present quarter-century it will be in operation.

But occasionally the French love for grand conceptions gives rise to some scheme which, though it may or may not be possible, is entirely beyond the realm of practical common sense. A few years ago an enthusiastic Gaul seriously proposed to build a canal from the Mediterranean to the Sahara Desert and transform the vast sandy waste into an inland sea, which would make fertile the entire surrounding country. This scheme [illegible] right [illegible] the Sahara [illegible] necessary [illegible] retaining [illegible].

Now comes another French [illegible] of somewhat [illegible] nature. The [illegible] Alaska-Siberian Railway Company [illegible] to tunnel Bering Strait, fill in the intervening gaps with railroad [illegible] and run through trains from New York to Paris. Though there are tremendous difficulties in the way of the completion of this plan, the promoters believe that none of them is insurmountable. [illegible] the narrowest point [illegible] Channel are the Diomede Islands, and by using one of these, four heads of the tunnel could be driven at the same time.

But according to a recent account of this enterprise, there is another obstacle to the completion of the proposed road which may prove more serious than is now expected. This is the topography of the extreme Eastern part of Siberia, one of the most utterly desolate spots on earth. For a distance of several hundred miles the railroad would have to pass through this region, which, besides being too bleak and inhospitable to sustain life, is filled with interminable morasses, so that it is very doubtful whether a railroad could be built capable of sustaining its own weight, much less that of heavy railroad trains.

But even if it is possible to carry this enterprise to completion, it is hard to see how the promoters expect to make it a financial success. There is not, and doubtless never will be, a commercial necessity for such a railroad, though the time will probably soon come when a line connecting the territory of the United States with Alaska will be profitable.

WITHDRAWING COAL LANDS.

THE withdrawal from entry by the Government of extensive areas of coal lands, part of them situated in Colorado, is in line with the policy recently recommended by President Roosevelt. The rapidly increasing consumption of coal and the equally rapid acquisition of the best deposits by a few large corporations has caused the fear that unless the part of the public domain which contains coal is withdrawn from entry it will not be long until practically all of the nation's fuel deposits are in the hands of a few. Public coal lands all over the West are to be withdrawn in the hope of conserving the fuel supply, which, in the opinion of geologists will be practically exhausted anyway before the end of the present century.

Great Britain long led the world in coal production, but in 1899 it was passed by the United States which has since been supreme in this important industry.

According to the Engineering and Mining Journal, the United States in 1902 produced in round numbers 293,000,000 tons of coal, as against 245,000,000 tons for Great Britain, 166,000,000 tons for Germany, 43,000,000 tons for Austria-Hungary, and 32,500,000 tons for France. Illinois already produces as much coal as France, and West Virginia produces more than Belgium. The Pennsylvania mines have been worked longer than any others in the country, but their production is still increasing and is now approximately the same as that of all Germany.

Colorado ranks seventh among the states of the Union in coal production, being surpassed in the order named by Pennsylvania, Illinois, West Virginia, Ohio, Alabama and Indiana. Considered as a whole the coal fields of the West are not to be ranked with those of the East, either in quantity or quality, though there are many deposits in Colorado and other Western States of considerable extent and great value. Perhaps the most promising of these is in Routt county, where the quality is exceptionally high.

The coal deposits of North America are more extensive than those of any other continent, but they are being worked out at a rapid rate. Perhaps they will last longer than the European mines, but geologists declare that in the next century there will be so little coal left in either country that the world will be compelled to look to China for its fuel supply. The coal fields of the Celestial Empire are of vast extent but are still practically undeveloped. If the time comes when America and Europe have to ship their fuel across the Pacific, coal will be a luxury which none but the rich can enjoy.

The discreet silence of these charter boosters as to what they intend to do with our city government, if they secure control of it, while it may be the part of discretion, is not very satisfactory to the people.—Yesterday's Telegraph.

About the most discreet silence that has been noticed in this town lately is the silence of the Telegraph as to its reasons for changing its attitude on the charter question. Whichever way the evening paper turns, it finds that everlasting interrogation point staring it in the face, but it is "the part of discretion" to keep mum.

Remember those seven-column lines that used to be displayed so conspicuously each day across the first page of a certain Colorado Springs paper, telling what a beautiful thing it is to be "independent?" Notice how conspicuously absent they are now?

Why?

LIEUT. PIKE'S DIARY

For One Hundred Years Ago Today

Sunday, 23 November. In the morning, for the purpose of trying the experiment, we equipped six of our fleetest coursers with riders and ropes to noose the wild horses, if in our power, to come amongst the herd. They stood until we approached within forty yards, neighing and whinnying, when the chase began, which we continued two miles without success. Two of our horses ran up with them, but we could not take them. Returned to camp. I have since laughed at our folly for endeavoring to take wild horses in that manner, which is scarcely ever attempted with the fleetest animals and most expert ropers.

Marched late. The river turned to north by west, the hills changed to the south side. Distance advanced, thirteen miles. Killed one buffalo.

Open Parliament

CHANCELLOR BUCHTEL'S CHARACTER.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

A bunch of political sensations is usually sprung in the last week of a campaign, and I wish to send one to you and hope you will publish it.

Through all this campaign I have noted how little the newspapers seem to know about the real character and traits of Henry Buchtel. They seem acquainted only with the politicians.

Back in '96, in common with thousands of other Republicans I was attracted to Mr. Bryan because he seemed to be a man of sympathy for fellow man. He was said to be the one public man that had a real regard for humanity. This was what won the affection even of people who mistrusted his theories.

Now I want to say that this man Buchtel is just such another man of big heart and deep sympathy and unselfish devotion, with this difference—Mr. Bryan, living in luxury himself, seeks the good of others through oratory, which attracts eulogy of his own merits; but the Denver teacher does not stand apart on a pedestal of political theory, he gets down among the people and in touch with the individual; plans and worries and talks and thinks with him—not as an acquaintance but as a friend that is a friend. He is like a brother to the struggling young man trying to lift himself upward; a father to the girl striving after education and after escape from ignorance and dependence. Ask hundreds of those he has helped and encouraged, and those he has taught to help themselves. You can get their eager testimony. They know what sacrifice is. Not the kind of benefaction that parades it in the Lindsey style, but the fraternal endeavor that perhaps only three know of—the third one being that Other Brother.

We have a candidate who is true and brave and manly; he goes about praising others. I want to see those that like a hero speak out.

FAITH HEALING.

To the Editor of The Gazette:

Members of the "Christian Assembly," friends of mine, objected to my article on "Faith Healing," sometime ago, in regard to G. F. Fink as misleading. I do not want to do anyone an injustice and cheerfully correct where I am wrong.

I tried to be exact in my statements rather than misleading and when I said that I had never seen a case of "faith healing" with my own eyes in the home or anywhere else, I told the exact truth, as far as my sight was concerned, but as I said in my article at the time, I had reason to believe on creditable testimony that there had been healings in the "home" as well as elsewhere, but that I did not believe in indiscriminate faith healing. That God afflicts sinners sometimes with sickness to bring them to himself, Christians to get wrongful tendencies out of them and that when they are perfectly obedient He saves and heals.

Miss Dolly Hamilton was healed of erysipelas without medicine, presumably by faith. One night while I was sick in my room Brother Gedney of Cripple Creek, Colo., broke his arm and I heard next morning that Brother Fink prayed for him and laid his hands on the arm and the bones snapped together. Brother Miller, an assistant at the "home," as well as the lady herself, told me that he laid hands on her for womb trouble and that she was instantly healed. Mrs. H., an estimable and truthful Christian lady, told me that she was healed of cancer.

Respectfully, GEORGE WILHELM.

AN ERA OF PROSPERITY.

From the Rocky Ford Enterprise.

The people of this county are certainly enjoying an era of prosperity just now, and this holds true in all branches of human activity. Work is plenty, wages good—in fact, very good, and no excuse exists for idleness or want. Not within the memory of man have good times been so general as right now. Especially does this apply to the farmer—crops are bountiful and prices high. The mortgage is lifted, money in the bank, stock in good shape—everything in plenty. The farmer has every reason to rejoice, and when the farmer rejoices all the rest of us feel jubilant. We believe every one will be interested in learning how to continue these pleasant conditions, and the great family [illegible] announces, with pardonable pride, that it has the receipt, guaranteed to work every time, as it has always worked whenever tried. Forcing Nature to Yield Her Secrets

Extraordinary Activity of the Carnegie Institution of Washington in Many Phases of Scientific Research.—Sun Spots, Earthquakes and the Weather Among Subjects Concerning Which Amazing Discoveries Are Made.

From the Philadelphia Public Ledger.

IF only a fraction of the work now under way by the Carnegie Institution of Washington brings the results that are hoped for, the world will be astounded and delighted by the announcement of scientific discoveries that will seem stranger than fiction. An enumeration of the variety of work undertaken in many parts of the world by the 400 experts supported by the institution would weary and confuse the reader, since it would comprise a list of studies in nearly every branch of scientific research. A glance at the more novel and important undertakings in hand may, however, give a hint of the audacious hopes of science in solving problems that have mystified the ages.

For illustration, it is confidently expected that within a year the world will be electrified by official announcement of the discovery of the cause and nature of sun spots, which, perhaps, may disclose the true nature of the sun itself. This discovery will naturally lead to an explanation of the kind and extent of the sun's influence upon the earth in the forms of light, heat and magnetism. With this information in its possession, science hopes to be able to predict changes in the sun, which are supposed to exert momentous influence upon the earth. Thus the time when weather predictions may be made a year in advance is believed to be measurably nearer. Times of flood, drought and pestilence, it is thought, may ultimately be foretold to a nicety.

To Map the Southern Sky.

Among other projects now in hand by the Carnegie Institution are the establishment of an observatory in South America for the mapping of the southern sky; the manufacture of glass from quartz, which will withstand heat better than steel; the creation of new fruits, vegetables and grasses; the crossing of fishes, birds and animals for the study of heredity, and the evolution of improved types; a study of the human body as affected by foods, with a corresponding study of the nutritive and chemical qualities of foods, in the hope of perfecting a system for dieting the sick which will restore them to normal conditions; the manufacture of rocks, with the object of discovering the secret of nature's creation of the precious metals; a magnetic survey of the oceans, which will disclose the mystery of the magnetic pole and incidentally enable steamers to cross the oceans in much shorter time than at present, and a study of the desert, from sea level to 3,000 feet above, in the confidence that forests may be established and nutritious forage be made to cover the present wastes.

These projects seem at first glance to be questions for the distant future, but the progress already made encourages the belief that some of them, at least, will be realized within a short time. Quartz glass has already been made which meets the requirements of the arts. Certain rocks have also been manufactured by the young alchemist who is to study the genealogy of gold. At Mount Wilson the anxious watchers are trembling over the discovery of the constitution of the sun.

Luther Burbank's Work.

At Santa Rosa, Luther Burbank is creating new potatoes, plums, "plumcots," berries and flowers in bewildering variety. The stout brig Galilee is now out between Honolulu and Manila, making a magnetic survey of the Pacific. Secretary Root, while in South America, will make arrangements for the site of the observatory from which the position of stars visible from that hemisphere will be fixed and mapped—a work that will stand for centuries. At Cold Harbor, N. Y., novel experiments in animal hybridization are being conducted, and at Tortugas, Fla., the secrets of the life of the ocean are being revealed to science.

In the suburbs of Washington the Carnegie Institution is building a physical laboratory from which remarkable discoveries are expected to be reported. There Arthur L. Day, a young expert employed by the United States geological survey, will continue his experiments in the manufacture of rocks and quartz glass. Regarding the first, which hints of alchemy, little is to be said at present beyond the fact that rocks have actually been made by Mr. Day which are identical with natural rock. His quartz glass, however, is already of practical benefit. The Carnegie Institution astronomers at Mount Wilson, in California, found that their great reflecting mirror was subject to great expansion by the heat of the sun, which tended to destroy its focus or distort its images, thus preventing the taking of accurate photographs of the sun. Electric fans were turned upon the mirror, with slight effect. The astronomers suggested that a glass made of quartz instead of sand should be manufactured, quartz glass being less responsive to the influence of heat. The difficulty, however, was in producing quartz glass free of bubbles, suitable for a mirror. Professor Day attacked the problem and by subjecting the quartz to a temperature of about 4,000 degrees Fahrenheit and a pressure of 500 pounds to the square inch, he has produced glass entirely free from flaws and practically unaffected by heat.

Has Commercial Value.

This glass, scientists say, will soon find its way into the arts and manufactures. It does not expand nor contract, and its melting point is as high as that of steel. Indeed, steel safes may be constructed with doors of quartz glass, permitting a view of the contents. The material will also probably be employed in building as soon as the cost of manufacture is reduced.

The world has heard much of Luther Burbank, but it is not generally known that the Carnegie Institution is his principal supporter. An allowance of $10,000 a year for ten years has been made for him, in addition to which an allotment of $5,000 has been made for the scientific study of his marvelous discoveries. Burbank is not a scientist in the accepted sense, and is sometimes at a loss to tell how and why certain results are accomplished. [illegible] for the [illegible] of the relations of plants and their laws of being which might yield such important results to mankind. The Carnegie Institution, therefore, has assigned the work to several scientific workers who will remain with Burbank and reduce to scientific system his multifarious discoveries.

The other day these scientific gentlemen, who had never seen Burbank, were advised by their traveling companion, President Woodward, of the Carnegie Institution, that the Santa Rosa man had succeeded in crossing a strawberry and a raspberry. They rejected the story as an absurdity. "A strawberry is a vegetable; a raspberry is a tree." But when they arrived at Burbank's place they were shown photographs of the remarkable fruit resulting from the strawberry-raspberry union, and Burbank agreed to repeat the experiment under their personal inspection, just to show them that he could.

Wonders of the Nursery.

These scientific visitors to the workshop of a plain "nurseryman" lost all their incredulity when they beheld a plum tree bearing not one nor two nor half a dozen kinds of fruit, but 300 kinds, all distinct, yet drawing their life from a common trunk. They saw Burbank's famous raspberry, which is two inches across; his Shasta daisy, six inches in diameter; his fadeless flowers, spineless cactus, stoneless prunes and plums, and all the other marvels which have been made known to the world.

"I know I shall be regarded as a crazy man when I tell you that the work being done by this one man will produce more wealth than the entire endowment of the Carnegie institution, which is $10,000,000," said President Woodward. "But I accept this risk and make the statement. I go further, and give it as my deliberate opinion that Burbank's discoveries will return five times $10,000,000. His potato alone has been worth millions to this country. He is now at work perfecting a new variety of potato that is expected to be of immense benefit to the country. He is not seeking to invent a freak, but merely to develop a fine, large, palatable, vigorous potato of good keeping qualities. This, of course, is only one of thousands of experiments which he is now making."

Intimately connected with one branch of Luther Burbank's work is the desert laboratory of the Carnegie Institution near Tuscon, Ariz. Several hundred acres are being used as a botanical experiment station, and other stations are being maintained on nearby mountains at various elevations, thus permitting a study of desert conditions from sea-level to an altitude of one mile above the sea. While Burbank is at work perfecting his thornless cactus and other forage plants which are adapted to desert life, the Carnegie scientists on the desert are studying actual conditions of life there with reference to temperature, rainfall, irrigation, etc., in the hope of reclaiming the desert to vegetation. The government is assisting in this work through the reclamation service and the geological survey.

Close Study of Man.

What is the relative efficiency of a man as a working machine? What proportion of energy does he develop from the food he eats? What is the best kind of fuel with which to fill the human boiler? Can a man whose energy and strength are below par be restored to normal efficiency by varying the fuel that keeps him going? These are some of the questions that are being investigated by experts of the Carnegie institution. An air-tight chamber has been made, in which a man has been placed and studied exactly as a mechanical engineer would study a steam boiler and engine. The air, food and water supply furnished to the subject is minutely measured, and the constituents of each carefully noted and compare with the waste material. The subject is studied under conditions of fasting, normal eating, overeating, etc., and the proportion of energy developed from the nutriment supplied is ascertained. These experiments are also being made with subjects suffering from certain ailments, in order to ascertain, if possible, the exact effect of various foods upon the bodily strength and welfare. By means of a long series of these studies, together with examinations into the properties of foods, it is hoped that a system of dieting may be devised which will do more than medicine to restore sick, weak, or otherwise abnormal persons to a normal condition.

"The greatest study of mankind is man," said an official of the Carnegie institution, in discussing these experiments. "But we can not hope to make studies of the character which science regards as most important and fruitful of great possibilities. We find that society will not permit certain researches and experiments. What greater fields are there, for example, than studies in anthropology and psychology? Yet we must keep out of these fields until society becomes more receptive to scientific truth. We should like to study the American negro and the Filipino, as well as to prosecute researches into the mystery of the human brain, but the obstacles can not be overcome. [illegible]"

Study Laws of Evolution.

"A part of the wonders that might be unfolded by the study of [illegible] at Cold Harbor, N. Y., who are at work upon animals, fishes, insects and plants. The laws of evolution are being [illegible] hand. The three factors of evolution—variation, inheritance and adjustment to environment—are being weighed, with most interesting results. Our investigators are aiming to develop a better breed of cattle, new fishes and plants. The products of hybridization of animals and plants are wonderful, and new light is being thrown upon such obscure problems, for example, as the significance of color markings."

Another enterprise inaugurated by the Carnegie Institution at great expense is that of making a magnetic survey of the oceanic areas of the globe. Fairly good magnetic surveys have been made of land areas, but the water area, three times as great, remains unexplored. No one knows as yet the cause and nature of terrestrial magnetism. Why does the needle point to the north? Why does it vary widely at different spots? What causes it to dip? What is the cause of the third mysterious horizontal movement, recently discovered? For the purpose of gaining light on these questions the brig Galilee is now making a survey of the North Pacific ocean. The most practical result of these studies, if they are fully worked out, will be the mapping of the oceans so that steam vessels may take and keep the shortest route between two ports, with absolute certainty of position. At present, perhaps, two full days are lost by the swiftest steamships in crossing the Pacific on account of the needle. The time of transatlantic liners could also be cut down materially if the magnetic variation were exactly known at every stage of the route.

May Predict Earthquakes.

If the magnetic surveys undertaken by the institution are as successful as hoped for, the secret of terrestrial magnetism will be learned. Armed with this knowledge, scientists believe that rapid progress would be made toward prognosticating the occurrence of earthquakes. They are satisfied that a close connection exists between the sun and terrestrial magnetism, and are prepared for discoveries which will establish this connection. The observations of the sun taken daily at Mount Wilson are, therefore, considered in their relation to the work of the Galilee, in mid-Pacific, and investigators are hopeful that these parties, so far separated, will find the threads that are supposed to connect them.

Among the investigations of minor importance undertaken by the Carnegie Institution is that concerning American history. Students are at work in the government archives of Spain, Great Britain and Cuba, as well as in the papers of the state department and the library of congress. Important historical data are believed to be forthcoming within the next year. The institution is also gathering material on an enormous scale for an economic history of the United States.

These studies, together with advanced researches in archeology, marine biology, chemistry, geology, paleontology, physics, zoology and a dozen other "ologies," comprise the chief activities of this great institution, which has already demonstrated its immense usefulness in supporting investigations which would be too costly for private enterprise and which are hardly within the scope of the government's functions.

ENDS LIFE WITH REVOLVER

Proprietor of the El Paso, a House of Ill-Fame, at Colorado City, Commits Suicide.

Despondent because she was deserted by her husband about two months ago, Beatrice Smalley, proprietor of the El Paso, a house of ill-fame at 617 Washington avenue, Colorado City, locked herself in her room and committed suicide by shooting herself through the heart with a 38-caliber Smith & Wesson revolver at 1:20 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Death resulted instantly.

Inmates of the house heard the shot and notified the police. Officer Frank Watt and Fireman Shreeves broke in the door of the woman's room and found her lying face down upon the floor. Near her lay the weapon with which she had ended her life. Coroner Law removed the body to Colorado Springs and C. T. Smalley of Osawatomie, Kas., father-in-law of the dead woman, was notified. He sent the following reply: "Hold body. Am coming."

"About two months ago Beatrice was deserted by her husband. She then took up with a fellow at Colorado Springs. I knew that she was troubled, but did not know she intended to kill herself. Yesterday afternoon a short time after 1 o'clock, I heard a shot. The police broke in the door of her room and found her dead. I believe that it was on account of the trouble with her husband, who deserted her, and because of this Colorado Springs fellow, that she shot herself. The man at the Springs gave up his position when he fell in with Beatrice, and made her support him. Then, when he heard she had killed herself, he left town."

Beatrice Smalley, who was about 38 years old, came to Colorado City six or seven years ago and entered one of the houses in the redlight district. Her husband, Harold Smalley, lives in Dallas, Tex. They were married eleven years ago, but for some time have not lived together. A few months ago the woman purchased the El Paso. Last winter she left town for several months, returning about May. She is said to have a mother living in Paola, Kas.

Coroner Law said last night that it was a "clear case of suicide." No inquest will be held.

FARM LAND IN DEMAND

Lincoln and Elbert Counties Are Experiencing a Boom.

According to R. A. Nason, who has just returned from a visit to Lincoln and Elbert counties, the land office at Hugo has done more business during the last month than for the previous ten years. There is a land boom in progress, and in the town of Limon it is almost impossible to get hotel accommodations owing to the rush of land seekers. Much of the movement is due to the phenomenal crops harvested this season by the farmers using the dry-farming process.

NEWS OF THE LOCAL COURTS

Edward Tankersley, who was arrested in Davenport, Ia., on a charge of securing money under false pretenses, preferred by Patrolman C. N. Draper of this city, was brought back to Colorado Springs by Sheriff O. P. Grimes yesterday and arraigned before Justice W. N. Ruby. Tankersley was placed under bond of $1,000 for his appearance November 7, being committed to the county jail in default of bail.

Harold Draper, the son of Patrolman Draper, also returned from Davenport with his father.

Learning of the prosecution projected by Juvenile Officer William Reasoner, Jacob Schmitt and William Dyer, Colorado City saloonkeepers, yesterday appeared before Justice O. R. Dunnington and pleaded guilty to selling liquor to minors. Each paid a fine of $5 and costs.

Ernest Cone, Charles Bestol and Charles Zeiring are the boys to whom the liquor was sold. Officer Reasoner says that he will prosecute on the ground of contributing to juvenile delinquency, certain parents who, he has reason to believe, take their children with them into Colorado City saloons.

Attorney W. M. Swift yesterday filed suit in the district court against T. J. Eyster, Attorney C. W. Dolph and Edith Wilson, for $91.10, alleged balance due on attorney fees owing plaintiff by Edith Wilson, his former client.

Eyster and Dolph were the defendant and attorney, respectively, in the case filed by Swift in behalf of Miss Wilson. Swift claims that the three defendants entered into a "clandestine, surreptitious and fraudulent" agreement to settle the case out of court, for the purpose of defrauding him out of his attorney fees, after he had twice won the case for Miss Wilson.

Oliver P. Jackson yesterday filed suit against Henry Johns to recover $421.63, alleged balance due on the lease and other privileges of the O. P. Jackson ranch, in this county.

In the district court, yesterday, J. J. McCorkell secured a divorce from Phillippa McCorkell, on grounds of desertion. The couple were married in Canada, June 24, 1884.

In the district court, yesterday, N. B. Hames, C. D. Taylor and F. F. Schreiber were released from liability on the bonds given by them in the W. D. Ascough land fraud conspiracy case. The case has been settled out of court.

Edgar Truman Gilbert yesterday filed suit in the county court, and was shortly afterward granted a decree of divorce from Letitia May Gilbert. The plaintiff claimed that his ill health was aggravated by worry over his wife's improper actions. He agreed to leave their seven-year-old son in his wife's custody, and to pay reasonable maintenance for the former, provided he may visit the boy. The couple were married in Rochester, N. Y., October 7, 1897.

Pending motions and arguments in the case of Jeanette S. Campbell vs. D. N. Hitchcock et al., will be heard in the district court November 8.

JUDGES OF ELECTION MEET

Republicans Line Up Their Forces for Election Day.

A meeting of the Republican judges of election of the twenty-nine precincts of Colorado Springs was held last night at Republican headquarters. The purpose of the meeting was to ascertain to what extent the judges had familiarized themselves with the provisions of the election law governing their duties on election day.

The matter of certifying to the vote to be cast on the question of the charter convention was not formally discussed, it being generally understood among the judges that the constitutional provision covering the matter in a general way should be complied with by the judges. The appointment of the extra clerk, in accordance with the plan outlined in the notice sent out by City Clerk MacMillan, will be followed. It was suggested that a Republican probably will be appointed in districts where there are a majority of Republican judges, and a Democrat in precincts where the Democrats have a majority.

"BIG I, LITTLE YOU"

LINDSEY DENOUNCES EVERYBODY BUT HIMSELF.

Says Republicans Are Bad and Democrats Are Worse—Arraigns Local Judge and Supreme Court.

Judge Ben B. Lindsey, independent candidate for governor, delivered a spirited address last night at the Opera house, to a fair-sized audience. The meeting was presided over by General Linus E. Sherman, candidate for the legislature on the Independent ticket.

"I denounce those ringsters and tricksters, those political gray wolves of El Paso county, who have stolen my name to foist upon the citizens of this county a gang who are unscrupulous and dishonorable. I denounce them as thieves as bad as thieves who would steal my personal property. I denounce the judge of the district court who did not have the nerve to hear the proceedings instituted in his court to obtain justice on behalf of my followers and myself, and who called in another judge from a distant part of the state to do the jobbery that makes it impossible for me to have representation under my name in this county at the coming election. I denounce the supreme court, who refused to listen to our plea for justice. And I stand personally responsible for the consequences of these denunciations."

These were perhaps the most pointed portions of Judge Lindsey's speech, which was, from beginning to end, a series of denunciations of both the Republican and Democratic parties of the state.

Will Bawl Out Grafters.

"I know that I have a hard job before me to be elected against the combined forces of the two parties, who are dominated respectively by Bill Evans and Tom Patterson; but if it is the will of the people of the state that I shall become the chief executive, I want to say that I will stay in the governor's office and be the people's governor, even if the capitol building is shot out from under me. I take pleasure in roasting the Democrats harder than I do the Republicans. The Republicans can't help being corrupt, and the Democrats ought to know better. I will bawl out grafters, no matter in which party they may be, and no matter what may be the result of this election, I shall do just as I told a little fellow in the juvenile court to do when he was bemoaning the sad state of his family affairs—keep a stiff upper lip."

Wants Only Reform.

Judge Lindsey prefaced his address, which kept his audience in good humor from beginning to end, by stating that he was not running for governor because he wanted a political office. If it was office that he sought, he would not be a candidate, as he said Tom Patterson had sent for him and offered him a seat on the supreme bench, which he had refused. He had started into the fight for the governorship because he was convinced that the time had come when the best reform could be brought about by an independent movement. He said the parties need purging, and need it badly. It is time that the people established a movement independent of party. He had no powerful newspapers to espouse his cause. True, he had started out with one, but it had "got lost in the shuffle." It had grown very apathetic after he had refused to allow the Speer county ticket to be tacked onto his name.

Judge Lindsey said that before the nominations were made, and before he had decided to be a candidate, he had appealed to Alva Adams to find out where he stood, and that until Adams had gone to Denver and talked matters over with Patterson he didn't have the courage to open his mouth; that Adams, when it became known that he (Lindsey) would be a candidate for governor on the Independent ticket, along with other Democratic politicians, had endeavored to have him get off the track, but he refused to get off for Tom Patterson, or anybody else.

Talks of Corruption in Denver.

The speaker dwelt at length on the crimes that are committed in the city of Denver by the political heelers and of the deplorable conditions and practices that are winked at by the political bosses, because they do not dare interfere with the infamous graft of these heelers under penalty of losing the votes which control.

Judge Lindsey gave many reminiscences of the political jobbery with which he says he is familiar in the city of Denver, and told many interesting stories of happenings in his juvenile court. He recited how he had been re-elected to the county court by the people in face of the opposition of the political bosses, and told in detail of many instances of graft that have come to his notice while on the bench.

"I consider that my election to the county bench was a political miracle, and that it is nothing short of a miracle that I am there today," he said.

He was warm in his praise of Jacob Riis, the noted American writer on social subjects, and equally as warm in his eulogies of President Roosevelt. From start to finish, Judge Lindsey's speech was a running fire of denunciation of political graft and corrupt politics, and his statements regarding his work in the juvenile court were received with interest.

Other Speakers.

Prior to Judge Lindsey's address, a short speech was made by J. F. Sanford, of this city. The closing speech of the evening was made by Colonel J. W. Faw, of Denver, who has accompanied Judge Lindsey on his speaking tour of the state. He said in prefacing his remarks that he was [illegible] the comment after the close of the [illegible] show. The Midland band furnished music for the meeting and a number of the Independent and Democratic candidates occupied seats on the stage.

A SHOW THAT PLEASES.

This is the verdict universally accorded the Hi. Henry Big Aggregation of Minstrel Bright Lights, which will appear here at the Opera house tomorrow, giving two shows, matinee and night. The Hi. Henry minstrel show is known and noted from ocean to ocean. It bears a reputation for its general excellence, and aims to present the latest and best in minstrelsy. The present season finds this popular star troupe still further enlarged and improved, its policy being to present each season something better than the previous one. Those who have seen the Hi. Henry minstrels of the past have not seen the Hi. Henry minstrels of the present. Their management believes in progress and realizes that he has a reputation to sustain. Press reports from all sides speak very highly of Hi. Henry's show, and Mr. Henry realizes that he must hold the popular favor it has taken years to acquire.

Tickets for this superb show can now be had at the box office at popular prices, 50c, 75c and $1.00.

"THE COUNTY FAIR."

Neil Burgess, in "The County Fair," will be a drawing card at the Opera house next Monday evening. Seats are now on sale. Notwithstanding the fact that "The County Fair" has been presented many times in large cities, for it is greater and stronger than ever, with new and elaborate scenery and a stronger cast, with Mr. Burgess personally in the leading role as Abigail Prue, that character has made him famous. The story is one which contains all the material tints of rural farm life—a view of sunny hills, green trees and a homely farm house and a well stocked barn, with cows and horses, are realistic features, remarkably vivid, while the race track scene, with the exciting contest between four thoroughbred race horses, is one of the most stirring and exciting pieces of stage ingenuity. The corn husking bee is another scene which is remarkably lifelike.

"COMING THRO' THE RYE."

The production of "Coming Thro' the Rye" at the Opera house on next Tuesday evening gives promise of being a treat of rare quality. This musical comedy, or "song play," as it is called, recently finished a long and brilliantly successful engagement in Chicago. It comes here heralded as one of the conspicuous successes of the season, and there appears to be warrant for the announcement. The known elements which are combined in the work seem to be desirable antecedents, to say the least. The "book" is the work of the prolific young writer, George V. Hobart, and it is said to be full of enjoyable witticisms and laughable complications. The musical score was supplied by A. Baldwin Sloane, who has been associated with many meritorious compositions. There are eighty people in the organization, the principals being vocalists and comedians of known ability. Among these are Frank Lalor, Stella Mayhew, Alma Youlin, Bessie Gibson, Florence Townsend, Frank Doane, John Park and William Rock Hatch. The scenery and costumes are described as extremely beautiful, and the advance impression of the entire performance is that of a clean, bright, thoroughly enjoyable entertainment.

RISK IN TESTING ENGINES

DANGERS ATTEND UPON TRYING OUT RAILROAD MACHINERY.

OCCUPATION A PERILOUS ONE

For Young Engineers to Handle Obtain Exact Figures for Use by Managers of Big Roads.

Bloomington, Ill., Correspondence Chicago Chronicle.

Perched upon the front end of the big passenger engines of the Chicago & Alton, hidden from view by a big box-like wind shield and oblivious of all else save the recording of figures connected with the pulsations of the fast moving pistons in the huge cylinders below, Frank Butler and James Sweeney, two young men who are attaches of the mechanical engineering department of the road, daily make the trip between Bloomington and Chicago, dependent upon which run the engine is sent. No coward need apply for their job. Their work requires a peculiar kind of bravery.

With their backs to the road led in front and kept constantly engaged in placing cards within the ends of the piston and keeping a watch on a clock work piece of apparatus used in making tests on steam pressure, adjustments of valves and for other purposes, these young men occupy a position that would not be relished by the average man or woman. If there is a wreck and their engine collides with another or perchance should go plunging down an embankment or through a bridge into a river, the young engineers on the front end would be caught like rats in a trap. There would be no escape. There would not be one chance in a thousand of their escaping alive. The officals are not overrun with applicants for the positions of engine testers and the young men mentioned are not concerned over the possibility of anyone else beating them out of the job.

In Constant Danger.

The crew engaged in this test number three. These are in addition to the regular crew of engineer and fireman. The latter have nothing to do with the test and look after their regular duties regardless and perhaps indifferent to the presence of the testers. In fact, if the truth is told the enginemen would rather the testers would select some other engine. The space within the cab of an engine is naturally limited and a third person in the collection of records and who keeps his position in the cab looking after the consumption of water and coal is not welcomed. Then again, the engineers are averse to the presence of the young men on the front end with the constant danger of one or both being killed.

A farmyard bossy straying upon the track might be the innocent means of bringing the career of the youths to an untimely and gory end. Any other object equally bulky, if landed within the box in which are seated the testers, might have an equally sanguinary result. All these things are not calculated to ease the mind of the crew in front or in the cab, but the chances are that familiarity breeds contempt and the thought of danger does not enter the heads of any of those engaged in the unusual occupation.

Obtaining Exact Figures.

The engineer in charge of these tests is Herbert F. Hibler, a bright young graduate of a technological school. He sees to the weighing of all the coal placed in the tender of the engine, and also by the means of a glass tube gets the exact amount of water in the tank just before the engine starts upon a run. After completing the run he again measures the amount of water in the tank and soon knows the exact amount of consumption in gallons for the trip. He also knows the exact amount of coal consumed. If an engine is too extravagant in the usage of coal and the water to pull a certain weight train a given number of miles, then there is someting wrong and it becomes the business of the mechanical engineer to ascertain what is at fault.

The front-end tests are conducted to determine the proper adjustment of the valves and, if they are not square, how much they are out of line; to figure the pressure to the square inch on the cylinder heads, to determine if the two cylinders are equally balanced and, finally, to learn if the compression is equable or whether too much steam is admitted into the cylinders, making it impossible to exhaust before the piston has a chance to return. As everybody knows, a locomotive is really a double engine, one on one side connecting the left driving wheels with the left cylinder and one on the right side. If these two engines do not work in harmony trouble ensues. It is the business of these mechanical engineers to locate trouble and that is what these tests are for.

It is necessary to adopt some technical descriptions in order to convey an idea of the machinery in connection with the cylinder tests. A so-called Crosby indicator is used. This is screwed to a three-way cock, which connects an iron pipe running directly from each end of the valve to the indicator. The indicator is composed of two cylinders, one in which a card is placed and the other containing a delicate bit of mechanism called a piston. This piston is fitted to 1-1,000 of an inch and receives the direct steam pressure from the valve. Above the piston and cylinder is a spring which governs the pressure according to the amount of steam admitted. The other cylinder is connected with a pendulum which is attached to the cross-head of the engine and works in conjunction.

Testing the Engines.

Attached to the pendulum near the top is a cord connected with the first cylinder of the indicator. This forces the cylinder to revolve backward and forward. On top of the second cylinder is screwed a cap which also contains some delicate mechanism, called the "pencil arrangement." This is operated by the finest of steel clock springs that can be obtained. The pencil's movement is transverse to that of the cylinder, which moves backward and forward while the pencil works up and down in accordance with the steam admission [illegible] by the throttle in the cab.

The pencil [illegible] upon the card [illegible] by this mechanical [illegible] box-like [illegible] varying [illegible] the piston [illegible] called [illegible] the [illegible] cylinder [illegible] the exact [illegible] Bottle [illegible].

While [illegible] the mutilated [illegible] the [illegible] tests [illegible] marking [illegible] by [illegible] in greater [illegible] coal and water. BREAKING UP A LOG JAM.

From Outing Magazine.

Not many years ago a center jam formed just above the falls where the Tahquamenon river leaps forty feet to the whirlpool below. It was only a few yards back from the verge and to break it the men were obliged to get down into the water below it, stand there with the falls behind them and the current swirling about their knees and pry the bottom logs out with their peaveys.

The water was not deep and the jam itself sheltered them from the rush of the river, but if a man lost his footing he was gone. Carefully and cautiously they worked the first log loose and as it started toward them they leaped upon it and before it could get away with them jumped from it to the jam.

Loosening one stick was not enough to start the rest and they soon found that the whole pile would have to be torn apart little by little. More than that, other logs kept coming down the rapids and adding themselves to it, so that it grew at one end as rapidly as they could tear it away at the other, but they kept at it and in the course of time they worked back ten or twelve rods from the brink.

Swept Into the River.

Then of a sudden one of them saw a long piece of pulpwood coming for him. There was no time for him to dodge and it was too small to hold him if he mounted it, so as the only chance he tried to jump over it.

It was too quick for him. It took him across the thighs and the next instant he was down and the river was sweeping him toward the falls. On he went, faster and faster, nearer and nearer, till he was almost on the verge, and then by some miracle of strength and agility he got his spiked shoes against something solid, rose to his feet and started to wade back against the current.

Little by little he forged ahead till he met some logs large enough to carry his weight, and mounting them he jumped from one to another till he reached the jam. Then the foreman cursed him for having dropped his peavey and he waded out again almost to the brink, found it where it had caught between some rocks and brought it back.

The problem of handling a drive in which the logs are not made up into rafts, as is sometimes done, but are simply turned loose on the river, is to keep them from jamming and to see that no stragglers are left behind.

It is the stragglers that give the most trouble, the stray sticks that run aground in the shallow places and that, if the water falls considerably after the springs freshets, are often left high and dry on the banks to make what the river driver calls a dry rear.

In Peril "on the Loose."

Now and then, it is true, a whole field of logs catches in a narrow bend and the entire crew has to go forward to the point of congestion and set things moving, but most of the time the men are taking care of the rear, while the rest of the drive takes care of itself.

Just behind the drive a long boom, made of logs chained across the stream from shore to shore, with a big red bateau in charge at one end and a square, boxlike scow at the other. A short distance ahead of the boom are two smaller boats, one following each bank, and a few men are usually walking along the shores, sometimes on land, sometimes wading in the water and sometimes afloat on the loose.

The first time a river driver asked me if I was "any good on the loose" I thought that he was wondering whether or not I would make a congenial companion on a spree. This proved to be a mistake.

"The loose" is the term used on the drive to designate logs or pulpwood sticks floating loosely on the surface of the river and to be good on the loose is to be able to go about on it wherever one pleases without getting wet. To ride a big pine log is not very difficult, but to walk or run across a field of pulpwood, where most of the sticks are far too small to carry a man's weight, is like skating on very thin ice.

TRANSFORMATION OF A MOTHER

"You Look Old," Said the Girl, and a Crime Occurred—A Wisp of False Hair, and Its Falsifying Effect.

From the New York Sun.

The whole thing was heartrending to anybody who saw the mother enter the shop. Her face had the sweet gentleness of contented old age. Her rather scanty gray hair was brushed becomingly back from her low brow.

The daughter, who was very much waved as to her hair and otherwise relieved as to her natural appearance by the aids of art, led her into the shop and the smiling saleswoman drew the curtains about the mirror.

This graceful young person looked as if she had stepped out of the chorus of a comic opera. She wore a short accordion plaited silk skirt of shephard's plaid and a short sleeved shirt waist [illegible] peekaboo.

About her waist was [illegible] sash and ribbon of the [illegible] was tied in a bow in her [illegible]. Her [illegible] polished male shoes [illegible]. She took off the mother's [illegible] and then brushed back [illegible].

The daughter [illegible] attended to her [illegible] as if she were [illegible] [illegible] saleswoman [illegible] her hands a mass [illegible] much darker than [illegible] from the mother's head [illegible] the mother's back [illegible] deftly mingled the [illegible].

"Now don't you [illegible]" stepping back from [illegible] the mother a glass to [illegible] the awful thing that [illegible] to her old brow [illegible] say it looked perfectly [illegible].

The mother turned [illegible] daughter who stood by [illegible] same critical gaze that [illegible] utes before had [illegible] fangle.

"Well, I think it's [illegible]" the daughter said. "[illegible] told you I thought you [illegible] your hair back like that."

The older woman threw [illegible] saleswoman and looked [illegible]. She was evidently not [illegible] her own mind, however, [illegible] glances into the mirror. [illegible] know that the transformation had not been for the better.

The false hair stood stiffly on her head as if it bore no relation to her own coiffure. The falsity of the thing fairly shrieked. The lines in her face that had been gentle now looked like hard wrinkles.

Everything about her [illegible] had hardened and changed. The false hair added years to her looks [illegible] years of struggle against age.

"Come on, mother," the daughter added as they left the store. "I never had any idea that just that pompadour would change you so much."

Nobody else might have suspected it either. The potency of false hair is always much greater in such cases than anybody supposes.

GOOD SHOOTING BY SAILORS.

From the New York Sun.

Fighting Bob Evans' bluejackets have a right to be proud of their shooting. They are real men behind real guns. Any hostile vessel which gets in front of guns with these bluejackets behind them will be likely to know that there has been shooting. The record stands that steaming at twelve knots these amiable tars, firing at a target 60 feet long and 30 feet high bobbing on the waves two miles away from them, hit the object twenty-nine times out of thirty-nine shots. This was not done with six pounders, either, but with the guns of the main battery. The name of the ship, by the way, was the Maine, which Americans are frequently adjured to remember.

A target 60 feet by 30 must seem to the inexperienced landsman a pretty good mark. But just recall the fact that the Spaniards on the Cuban coast, firing from guns on stationary platforms, namely forts, could not hit marks like the Yankee, which was 400 feet by 30, even when she was not moving, and that, too, at short range. They fired most of their shots clear over her. Firing at a mark such as the Maine's men used and while traveling at a twelve-knot gait is no simple problem.

In addition to the speed of the ship there is the roll always to be accounted for. Every man who has fired a naval gun knows that the time to squeeze the electric bulb is when the ship rests for a fleeting instant at the top of her upward roll. At that precious instant the gunner must have his sights set for the right elevation, his range and windage allowed for and his gun pointed at the right angle. He does not point it himself. He has to discount the interval which must elapse between his utterance of the direction to the trainer and that person's execution of the command. All the time the ship is rushing forward through the water at the rate of twelve knots. The target is slipping away toward the stern. The angle of train is continually changing, and the muzzle, rocked by the restless sea, is describing a circle around the mark.

The gunner must send the shell on its errand at just the right instant. It is a vastly different business from long range shooting on a rifle range. The finest training for this variety of marksmanship is shooting at birds on the wing. Wing shooting is a quicker and lighter form of marksmanship. The bird flies faster than the ship goes and affords a smaller mark than the target, but the fowling piece is almost a part of the sportsman and can be handled as swiftly as his own arm.

The sailors are improving in their shooting every day. Possibly some future historian of the navy will recall the fact that the great advance in our gunnery skill began about the time that the late Admiral Sampson was at the head of the bureau of ordnance when he directed that in addition to the then existing conditions of target practice there should be added a certain number of shots to be fired as fast as possible. Speed as well as accuracy is essential to successful gunnery in modern warfare, and the seamen of the navy are showing a realising sense of this in their splendid records at the targets. Admiral Sampson's part in inciting them and their officers toward higher achievements ought not to be forgotten.

"SALTED" MINE CASE SETTLED

Decision Handed Down in Lowe-Richardson Case.

CENTRAL CITY, Nov. 1.—The once famous Lowe-Richardson mine case has been settled in the supreme court at Washington. The amount involved is $385,000, which the Richardson heirs must pay if they want to retain possession of the mine. Of this amount $160,000 has been paid to Lowe by Mrs. Richardson, at the time she undertook to buy the mine.

The mine is on Russell gulch, and its output is estimated at $1,000,000. When Mrs. Richardson bought the mine she had her own expert value it, and installed a $50,000 plant, but when the mine was put to working again, she said it had been salted and sued Lowe for the return of the money she had already paid him.

The case dragged its weary way through every court in the United States and has at last been settled. The costs of the case and court fees have been charged against Mrs. Richardson.

STOCK MARKET ACTIVE

FURTHER EXPANSION OF BUSINESS EVIDENT.

Speculative Interest Centers in Pennsylvania Raising Dividend Beneficial.

NEW YORK, Nov. 1.—There was a further expansion of business in the stock market today and some gain in animation and, moreover, the increase of activity was accompanied by rising prices. The speculative interest centered largely in Pennsylvania and the whole market was benefited by the raising of the dividend rate on that stock to 7 per cent by the declaration of a semiannual dividend of [illegible] compared with 3 per cent for the preceding six months' period. The action of the stock on the news was confirmation of the report heard for some time of the inclination of the board to decide as it did. The uncertainty over the action to be taken was attributed to the doubt over the policy of a larger dividend disbursement in spite of large surplus being earned over the current rate of distribution owing to the large capital requirements of the company and the heavy increases in fixed charges that are being added to the company's accounts by the issues of new securities.

From the stock market point of view, also, there was doubt amongst operators as to the probable response of the stock in case the dividend was increased. The heavy demand for the stock and the manner in which it was sustained after the dividend action was taken proved encouraging to speculative sentiment in the whole list, as proving that rule of settling on favorable news was not of universal application. The holiday in London may have served to free the market from some pressure from that source. Discount hardened in London and the Bank of England reported a further slight decline in proportion of reserve to liabilities.

The week's gain in bullion was trivial in spite of large acquirement of South African gold arrivals. Call money rates here are still above the normal, but there was no aggravation of yesterday's stringency and a gradual relaxation is expected with the passing of the November 1 period, and the disbursement of dividends. The time money market, however, shows sustained strength and loans for sixty and ninety days commanded a premium over the 6 per cent rate. Mexican Central securities reacted sharply from a recent advance on the report of a rupture of negotiations for purchase of the property by the Mexican government. Yesterday's short sellers were amongst the influential buyers today, so far as the effect on prices went. The day's advance, however, proved somewhat more than sufficient to retrieve yesterday's declines, and the market closed strong and quite active.

Bonds were steady. Total sales, par value, $2,684,000.

Bonds, U. S. 2s, advanced ⅛ of 1 per cent on call.

WHEAT CLOSES STRONG

SENTIMENT INCLINED TO BEAR SIDE EARLY.

Upturn of Prices Comes About Noon. Corn and Oats Are Steady—Provisions Strong All Day.

CHICAGO, Nov. 1.—Early in the day sentiment in the wheat pit was inclined to the bear side of the market, there being considerable selling by [illegible] holders because of easier cables and improved weather conditions. [illegible] were fairly active buyers and as the session advanced the demand from that source became more urgent. About the [illegible] commission houses [illegible] turn to [illegible]. The small movement was [illegible] for the improved demand [illegible] activity of milling wheat at Minneapolis and in the southwest was the chief cause of the rally. The report of the Kansas City Grain Dealers association, placing the total crop of Kansas wheat at [illegible] bushels, 57 per cent of which has already been marketed, caused additional strength in the market. The close was strong with prices near the highest point of the day. December opened ⅛ to ¼@⅜c lower, at 73⅝@⅞c to 73⅞c, advanced to 74⅞c, and closed at 74⅛@⅞c.

The corn market was easier at the opening because of the weakness of wheat, but later the market became steadier along with the wheat market. The small crop movement was also a strengthening factor. Commission houses were active bidders for the May delivery. The market closed steady. December opened ⅛ to ⅛@¼c lower, at 43⅛ to 43⅛@¼c, sold up to 43⅝ and closed at 43⅝@⅝c.

Oats responded moderately to the sharp advance in wheat, but the market in general was steady. December opened ⅛c lower, at 33⅝c, sold up to 33⅞c and closed at 33⅞c.

Provisions were strong all day because of a light movement of hogs, both here and in the west, and trading was active. At the close January pork was up 32½c at $14.17½. Lard was up 17½@20c at $8.62½. Ribs were 20@22½c higher, at $7.70.

A SCRAP OF PAPER.

From the New York World.

What is there in fiction is there a chapter to compare in intensity of dramatic interest with Monday's court record in the Weightman will case?

At a critical moment in the trial, when the testimony is tending strongly toward the plaintiff, counsel for the defense produces a sheet of paper yellow with age and bearing the signature of the dead patriarch. It is handed to the leading lawyer for the plaintiff, who reads on it a statement prejudicial to his client's case, and his face becomes "ashy, chalk-white." The associate counsel read it and betray their consternation. The examination of witnesses is [illegible]. A recess is taken and the suit for the disposal of a vast estate of $60,000,000 comes to an abrupt halt.

What [illegible] has anything to match this [illegible] dramatic feature? The episode will recall the case of Daniel Webster, who in open court stretched a slip of paper from the breast pocket of the defendant and triumphantly read from it the [illegible] necessary to convict him.

When [illegible] in the vaults of Coutts' bank in London was hidden up the faded proof of Mrs. Fitzherbert's marriage to Prince George of Wales, afterward [illegible] [illegible] striking [illegible] of a novelist's device [illegible] fact. In the scrap of paper [illegible] of the Weightman [illegible] stratagem [illegible]. Perhaps in the [illegible] future [illegible] the scrap of paper there will [illegible] with [illegible] contesting by word of [illegible] the contestants of his will.

HAD A CLOSE CALL.

"A [illegible] surgical operation, involving the removal of a [illegible], is [illegible] from me," [illegible] by the application of Bucklen's Arnica Salve," says A. C. Stickel of Miami, W. Va. "Persistent use of the Salve completely cured it." Cures Cuts, Burns and Injuries. 25c at the Hefley-Arcularius Drug Co.

WILL CONTINUE ALL WINTER

Work Planned for Cold Period by Summit County Gold Placers. Will Cut Tunnel.

BRECKENRIDGE, Colo., Nov. 1.—The pleasant weather here so far this month has permitted placer mining with hydraulic giants and sluices to be continued later into the year than usual. The operation of the big placer mining pit of the Banner Gold Placer Mining and Milling company, about two miles northwest from Breckenridge, continues with excellent results. Considerable coarse gold and nuggets are being taken out as well as much fine placer gold. The angle-bar steel riffles used in the sluices by order of the manager, Colonel Lemuel Kingsbury, not only save the coarser gold, but save gold that is so fine that when it is dry it floats upon the surface of water. This same gold, when seen dry in a glass bottle, looks like finely ground mustard. The two artificial lakes or reservoirs, which supply the water to the giant nozzles used in washing down the 30 to 50-foot high gravel banks of the Banner placer, give the water a tremendous force, resulting from the head pressure of the intake at the reservoir at an elevation of about 240 feet above the bedrock.

Besides the giant, a self-acting boom, that discharges a small reservoir full of water 20 times per day, is used to carry the debris of the upper washings down to the sluices at the lower end of the dump. During the winter Colonel Kingsbury expects to drive the New Year tunnel through the New Year ground and into the Banner territory for the purpose of locating and working the ore bodies from which the rich "float" ore found in the big placer pit appears to have been broken off.

It is estimated that the tunnel will cut the ore bodies several hundred feet below the surface. The arrangements made with the tunnel owners are such that the company will be allowed to work under lease, and ore that may be discovered by the Banner people in driving the tunnel towards their own property. Manager Kingsbury states that assays upon specimens from large chunks of "float" ore found on the placer run up to $240 per ton, and that many pieces of ore showing free gold were picked up in the pit during the season.

MARY CASHEN YIELDS WELL

$100 Ore Is Now Being Shipped From This Mine.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 1.—White brothers, operating on the Mary Cashen, practically within the precincts of the city of Victor, are getting out several cars of ore a month which is giving returns on an average of $100 in gold to the ton. This ore is being mined quite a little distance from the shaft, at a depth of 600 feet. The ore is being broken down from eighteen inches to two feet wide. This is about the best grade of ore that has ever been mined from the Mary Cashen, at least it is the best ore shipped in six or seven years.

SHIPMENT WILL RUN $40

Car of Good Ore Taken From Morning Glory No. 6 Every Week.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 1.—L. G. Henry, who has a lease on the Morning Glory No. 6, is getting out a carload shipment which is expected to run about $40 in gold to the ton. The ore is being broken at a depth of 350 feet some little distance from the shaft, where the ore shoot is from two to three feet wide.

MIDGET PRODUCING STEADILY

Property Believed to Have Been Worked Out, Makes Good Profit.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 1.—Lessee Smith, who is operating successfully on the Midget mine on the northwest slope of Gold hill, has a fine body of ore on the 900-foot level, where from three to four feet of ore is being mined, and which is giving returns in carload lots of $30 in gold to the ton.

Lessee Smith has ore on several other levels and the tonnage being maintained is at the rate of one car a week. The Midget mine is one of those properties which was supposed to have been worked out, but it is producing steadily and Lessee Smith is making a nice profit every month.

GOOD VALUES IN OCEAN WAVE

New Lessee Erecting Ore House; Will Start Shipments Soon.

Special to The Gazette.

CRIPPLE CREEK, Nov. 1.—John Nichols, who recently took a lease on the Ocean Wave claim on Battle mountain, has begun the erection of an ore house, and will start to make shipments within ten days. Mr. Nichols secured a lease on this property a few weeks ago. Litigation for several years has kept this property idle, but since Mr. Nichols has secured the lease, he found several good veins. At an approximate depth of 200 feet a vein about three feet wide has been uncovered, which is full of stringers. The assays show the ore to give values of from $25 to $125 in gold to the ton.

ABDUL HAMID'S SUCCESSOR

From Figaro.

Mehemed Reshad Effendi, the heir presumptive to the Turkish throne, awaits as a prisoner his turn to reign. The death of Abdul Hamid would draw him from a jail to assume supreme power. For many years he has been shut up in his harem; he has seen no one but his wives, his slaves and his jailers. He has had no conversation, he has read nothing, books and company being interdicted. One of these days he may be sultan; now he is in the depths of a tomb.

SOAP AND ALUM AS WATERPROOF

From the Cement Age

The cement reservoir of the new water system at Uxbridge, Mass which leaked water at the rate of 25,000 gallons a day when tested, has been treated with an inside coat of a composition of soap and alum. The composition is made by heating soap, alum and water in a kettle until the mixture is the thickness of a paste, when it is applied, while hot, with brushes. It is believed that this will fill the pores in the cement and prevent the water from leaking through. This process has long been known to engineers, and in spite of the theory of some that it will not last, has given entire satisfaction on more than one occasion.

REFLECTIONS OF A BACHELOR

From the New York Press

Sometimes a man cusses just to keep from forgetting how.

What a woman likes about being married is thinking how much better she could have done.

In politics either you get rid of all your money or the public gets rid of some of theirs.

Generally you can tell what a woman means by guessing the opposite of what she says.

There may be no marriages if heaven but there must be dressmakers or there will be trouble.

A YEAR OF BLOOD

The year 1905 will long be remembered in the home of F. N. Tacket of Alliance, Ky., as a year of blood, which flowed so copiously from Mr Tacket's lungs that death seemed very near.
